SHELTONS ALLEGE HOLDUP CHARGE IS FRAMEUP BY FOES

Gang-Leading Brothers Prepare to Offer Alibi to $15,000 Mail Robbery at Collinsville.

INFORMER'S STORY CONTRADICTS THEIRS

They Say They Were at Funeral at Marion, Ill., but Art Newman Declares They Arrived Late.

The Shelton brothers of East St. Louis—Carl, Earl and Bernie—whose gun fights and anti-Ku Klux Klan activities have contributed to the reign of an law that has terrorized Williamson County, Ill., for so long, will offer an alibi as their defense against the charge of mail robbery for which they are in jail.

Also they will contend they are victims of a conspiracy by other gangsters with whom they once roamed as companions in crime, who desire to get them out of the way for personal reasons. Among those they name Art Newman, former East St. Louis gambler-gangster, who will be a witness against them, and who is looked upon by the Sheltons as the "Ray Renard" of their "mob."

Newman, as has been told recently appeared before a special Federal grand jury at Springfield, Ill., and shortly thereafter the grand jury returned indictments against the Sheltons. Their case thus parallels that of the former notorious St. Louis Egan gang of robbers, of which Ray Renard was a member and whose testimony convicted them.

To Face Judge FitzHenry. Like the Egan, the Sheltons must go to trial before Judge FitzHenry of the U. S. District Court of Illinois, who imposed quarter-century sentences against the St. Louis gangsters.

Whether the alibi to be offered by the Sheltons will successfully controvert the charge remains to be seen. Newman told a Post-Dispatch reporter it would not.

The robbery was at Collinsville, between 5 and 9 a. m. Jan. 27, 1925. A Postoffice messenger, 64 years old, was carrying a registered package from the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank, containing $15,000, from the railroad station to the Postoffice, when three armed men robbed him of it and escaped.

The Sheltons will offer testimony that they were at Marion, about 100 miles away, before noon that day, to attend the funeral of Ora Thomas, Williamson County Deputy Sheriff, killed by S. Glen Young, Ku Klux leader and gangster, who was also slain in the fight.

Could Not Have Done It, They Say. "We could not have committed the robbery at Collinsville," said Earl Shelton, "and be at Marion at the time we will show we arrived there."

He refused to give the exact time he arrived at Marion, explaining that more than a score of witnesses would bear him out that he and his brothers were there before noon.

On the other hand, Newman said he drove Earl and Carl Shelton, two other gangsters and an East St. Louis attorney to Marion, the day of the robbery to attend the funeral. He said they left East St. Louis at 11 o'clock and the funeral services were over when they arrived.

Records show the services began at 2 p. m. and ended at the grave, near Herwin, an hour later.

"If the Sheltons claim they were at Marion before noon that day," said Newman, "let them explain how we arrived too late for the funeral."

Newman Accuses Sheltons. Newman would not accuse the robbery except to assert the Sheltons committed the crime, and that the Government would prove it. He would neither admit nor deny he appeared before the grand jury, and when told the Sheltons were calling him the "Ray Renard" of the gang, denounced them as assassins who had attempted his life and preferred two murder charges against him to an attempt to get rid of him.

"They are the Ray Renards," said Newman. "If I wanted to 'copper' (inform against them) I could hang them. Just wait. They are due for a long ride." (Long term in prison.)

statements Saturday night to a Post-Dispatch reporter in the armored hut of Charley Birger, the desperado, in the Williamson County woods. Birger has sworn to kill the Sheltons on sight, and Newman is scouring there as a matter of protection, fearing friends of the Sheltons will kill him.

Gunmen Receive Reporter.

Newman, Birger and four other gunmen of forbidding mien, all in bulletproof jackets, greeted the reporters. Two machine guns were placed handy and other arms were stacked around the room. Each gunman had automatic pistols strapped to him and carried a rifle.

During the interview two auto mobile stopped near the place and the gunmen drew their pistols and covered the occupants until they learned they were friends.

The dining room and conference chamber of the gangsters is underground, and the reporter was taken down there to dinner, consisting of rabbit the gunmen had killed during the day at target practice.

Newman and the Sheltons targeted ways several months ago. They had been bosom friends, but now are sworn enemies. The break was caused, the Sheltons say, by Newman's wife, Bess, who did not like them.

Killing in Shelton Resort. Then Newman killed a man in a resort in East St. Louis, operated by the Sheltons, which caused police to close the place, and this aggravated the situation.

More recently Newman and his wife were fired on near Harris by a gang that he said was led in person by Carl Shelton. Believing from this he was marked, Newman came to St. Louis and had been here only a few days when he was arrested in a police round-up of suspected criminals.

Postoffice inspectors questioned him at Police Headquarters, and a few days later the indictments for mail robbery against the Sheltons were voted. The case probably will go to trial in January.

The Sheltons are in jail, Earl and Carl at Peoria, and Bernie at Bloomington, each in default of $50,000 bond.

Federal Inquiry Into Attempts to Kill U. S. Officer.

A Federal inquiry into a phase of the Williamson County gang war was ordered today at East St. Louis by U. S. District Attorney Baker, following two attempts of gangsters to assassinate Deputy United States Marshal Zach Leitch at Harrisburg, Ill.

Leitch was in his coal office, 1109 East Poplar street, at 9:15 p. m. Saturday when gangsters in an automobile drove by, firing a dozen shots. Four bullets shattered windows, but missed the Deputy Marshal, his brother, W. H. Leitch, and his three sons.

At 11:15 o'clock, one also was fired into his office and he returned the fire.

Harrisburg newspaper men have refused to send out reports of the attacks, saying that local civic organizations requested them not to.

Others who qualified included Henry D. Byers, an ex-press driver; George Cobb, a railroad clerk; and Julian C. Kues, a retired street railway trainman.

Other jurors accepted, subject to challenge, were Alonzo Parker, a newspaper and book dealer; William J. Briggs, an architect; Byron E. Blodgett, salesman; Clinton Carver, machinist and William R. Clarkson, a railway clerk.

Chester M. Martindale, a clerk, and Charles M. Parker, a salesman, were accepted, completing the usual 12, but as each side had the right to challenge 10, it became apparent that the task of finally determining the personnel of the panel might take most of the day.

During the questioning, Carver said he heard Senator Walsh, the oil committee prosecutor, make a radio talk about the case two years ago, but that it made no impression upon him. He said also that some one asked his brother about his religion and politics about a week ago, but that he would not let religion or politics affect his attitude as a juror.

Fall and Doheny intently watched and listened while counsel questioned the prospective jurors. In all, 14 were questioned before the original 12 had qualified. One of those excused was an employee of

DENIES ANY KNOWLEDGE OF KANSAS CITY FRAUD

Author of Charges Says He Has No Facts About Alleged Expenditures.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 22.—H. R. Walmsey, Republican and former member of the State Legislature, who charged fraud in connection with the election of Harry B. Hawes to the United States Senate, today denied he had direct knowledge of any money or monies which had been spent in the election.

Walmsey was the first witness before Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the Senate campaign fund investigating committee. He was subpoenaed by Reed after a letter he had written to Senator Norris (Rep.) of Nebraska was made public last Saturday. In this letter Walmsey said that it was "common gossip" that the Kansas City Street Railway Co. had spent $250,000 and $750,000 in the election in Jackson County, Nov. 2 in consideration for which it was to obtain a 12-year extension on its franchise.

Walmsey was sworn and testified he had been in the insurance business in Kansas City for a number of years. He said he was a member of the Republican party.

Reed began by asking Walmsey, specific questions concerning the authorship of the letter. Walmsey testified he was the sole author of it and that he had consulted with no one before writing it.

"Do you know of any money or monies contributed to the Democratic campaign fund for use in the election Nov. 2?" Walmsey replied.

"Do you know of any money or monies contributed by any officers of the Kansas City Railway Co. to the Democratic Committee or to the City Council?" I do not.

"Do you know the names of names of any person or persons who would know of any such contributions?" Reed then asked. "I do not."

The taking of the testimony took 25 minutes. When it was finished, Reed said he had learned through the press that Walmsey had said, though dragged 75 feet down the tracks, followed by the other priests. When the circle was completed, a passerby, who picked up the boy as he reappeared from beneath the rear trucks of the coach, found him dazed but not unconscious.

At the hospital today Reather was still somewhat dazed. He said he had left home a week ago after a quarrel. Formerly he had never been out more than a night at a time. The elder Barrett, who is credit manager for a furniture company at 1023 Market street, declared he did not know Mrs. Robinson.

Yesterday he confronted her at Clayton and accused her of killing his son, but she tearfully denied his charge, and police are convinced she was telling the truth.

Young Barrett was shot six times in the right side at close range. His slayer, apparently, had held his right hand to cut off all possibility of resistance, for there were deep finger-nail marks in his flesh.

At the inquest today, Mrs. Robinson declined to testify until she had had an opportunity to consult a lawyer. The inquest was postponed indefinitely and she was escorted back to Clayton for further examination. The coroner's report, read before adjournment, showed that Barrett was struck by a bullet, had stopped 3:25.

Mrs. Robinson, who is known to police, was found for carrying a concealed weapon four years ago, after she had been "chirped" in the past by a gang in their home.

She is the second wife of an Egan gangster to figure in the case of the week. Last Thursday Ryan's wife filed suit for $500,000 against Egan, advancing his case on the ground that Egan had been a "bad" man as a ground for her action.

a statement that she had talked to two newspaper reporters.

"Now which of your two statements is the truth—the one in which you said you talked to no one, or the one that you now make that you talked with two reporters?" shouted Simpson, shaking his finger at the witness.

Case objected to what he termed Simpson's "bulldozing" and after a brief exchange Simpson lowered his voice and the witness said she was wrong when she testified she had talked with no one about the date.

The witness testified that neither Henry Stevens nor Mrs. Stevens had spoken to her about seeing Stevens at Lavallette on the night of the murder.

Mrs. Stevens Sent Her Away. Simpson drew from the witness the statement that Mrs. Henry Stevens had told her several days ago, and that she remained there until called to testify for the defense. Mrs. Stevens said she went by automobile to Bond Brook, and did not pay the fare herself. Simpson asked her if anyone had talked to her about the date, Sept. 14, 1922, and she said no one had.

After confining the witness with questions concerning the month, date of days in the weeks before Sept. 14, Simpson asked her, "Now, who has been talking with you?"

"No one," insisted the witness, who spoke in a faint voice throughout the cross-examination except during a few moments when she seemed to be somewhat angered by the brusque manner of the prosecutor.

On redirect examination, Case drew from Mrs. Evanson the statement that she had been ill last month, had visited a friend, and that was "not very well" now.

Questioned by the defense attorney as to the clothing which she washed for Henry Stevens the morning after the murder, Mrs. Evanson said the clothing had to be washed because it was wet. The witness said she had never received any letter from the prosecution asking her to report and tell her story before the trial.

Simpson took the witness again briefly to ask her if the Stevens family was helping to educate Mrs. Evanson's 19-year-old daughter. She said it was not.

Saw Stevens on Bench. The next witness, H. and P. Egan, a paint dealer of Philadelphia, told of arriving at Lavallette about 6 p. m. Sept. 14, 1922. He said he was walking along the beach about 9:15 p. m. when he saw Henry Stevens. This would place Stevens on the beach for a few minutes before the killing.

MINISTER BEGINS SERMON WITH FOOTBALL GAME WHISTLE

Tells 'Congregation' Including Group of Players, He at One Time Was a Referee.

By the Associated Press.
KINGSTON-ON-THE-THAMES, England, Nov. 22.—One sharp blast of a referee's whistle from the pulpit startled the congregation in St. Paul's Church, Kingston Hill, when the Rev. A. Wellesey Orr arose to deliver his sermon.

Instead of prefacing his remarks with a text of scripture, the vicar explained that the whistle would serve as such, as many of the listeners were members of football clubs of the Kingston district. "This whistle strikes terror into many of you, as I noticed by the way in which you jumped," the minister began. Pointing out that he himself as a young man had been an association referee, the vicar proceeded:

"My refereeing appeared to annoy some of the players because they began to swear; so I gave it up, as it is no use making a man swear on Saturday afternoon and trying to do a bit of good on Sunday."

The pews of the church were decorated with football jerseys brought by the respective clubs.

Many more hymns, alternated with chanting by the priests, and when the black-clad priest brought forth a silver bowl of holy water, which the gold priest sprinkled the couple. He then led them in a procession around the reading desk, followed by the other priests.

When the circle was completed, a passerby, who picked up the boy as he reappeared from beneath the rear trucks of the coach, found him dazed but not unconscious.

At the hospital today Reather was still somewhat dazed. He said he had left home a week ago after a quarrel. Formerly he had never been out more than a night at a time. The elder Barrett, who is credit manager for a furniture company at 1023 Market street, declared he did not know Mrs. Robinson.

Yesterday he confronted her at Clayton and accused her of killing his son, but she tearfully denied his charge, and police are convinced she was telling the truth.

Young Barrett was shot six times in the right side at close range. His slayer, apparently, had held his right hand to cut off all possibility of resistance, for there were deep finger-nail marks in his flesh.

At the inquest today, Mrs. Robinson declined to testify until she had had an opportunity to consult a lawyer. The inquest was postponed indefinitely and she was escorted back to Clayton for further examination. The coroner's report, read before adjournment, showed that Barrett was struck by a bullet, had stopped 3:25.

Mrs. Robinson, who is known to police, was found for carrying a concealed weapon four years ago, after she had been "chirped" in the past by a gang in their home.

She is the second wife of an Egan gangster to figure in the case of the week. Last Thursday Ryan's wife filed suit for $500,000 against Egan, advancing his case on the ground that Egan had been a "bad" man as a ground for her action.

a statement that she had talked to two newspaper reporters.

"Now which of your two statements is the truth—the one in which you said you talked to no one, or the one that you now make that you talked with two reporters?" shouted Simpson, shaking his finger at the witness.

Case objected to what he termed Simpson's "bulldozing" and after a brief exchange Simpson lowered his voice and the witness said she was wrong when she testified she had talked with no one about the date.

The witness testified that neither Henry Stevens nor Mrs. Stevens had spoken to her about seeing Stevens at Lavallette on the night of the murder.

Mrs. Stevens Sent Her Away. Simpson drew from the witness the statement that Mrs. Henry Stevens had told her several days ago, and that she remained there until called to testify for the defense. Mrs. Stevens said she went by automobile to Bond Brook, and did not pay the fare herself. Simpson asked her if anyone had talked to her about the date, Sept. 14, 1922, and she said no one had.

After confining the witness with questions concerning the month, date of days in the weeks before Sept. 14, Simpson asked her, "Now, who has been talking with you?"

"No one," insisted the witness, who spoke in a faint voice throughout the cross-examination except during a few moments when she seemed to be somewhat angered by the brusque manner of the prosecutor.

On redirect examination, Case drew from Mrs. Evanson the statement that she had been ill last month, had visited a friend, and that was "not very well" now.

Questioned by the defense attorney as to the clothing which she washed for Henry Stevens the morning after the murder, Mrs. Evanson said the clothing had to be washed because it was wet. The witness said she had never received any letter from the prosecution asking her to report and tell her story before the trial.

Simpson took the witness again briefly to ask her if the Stevens family was helping to educate Mrs. Evanson's 19-year-old daughter. She said it was not.

Saw Stevens on Bench. The next witness, H. and P. Egan, a paint dealer of Philadelphia, told of arriving at Lavallette about 6 p. m. Sept. 14, 1922. He said he was walking along the beach about 9:15 p. m. when he saw Henry Stevens. This would place Stevens on the beach for a few minutes before the killing.

AUTO SEIZURES UNDER DRY LAW UPHELD

U. S. Supreme Court Rules Unpaid-for Car May Be Forfeited by Government.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Automobiles being purchased on the installment plan, with title remaining in the motor company, were held by the Supreme Court today to be subject to forfeiture by the Government when used in the illegal transportation of intoxicating liquor.

The decision was in a case from Alabama. A somewhat similar proceeding has come up from Washington State.

The court divided widely. The question involved was whether the prohibition amendment laws had repealed the old internal revenue laws relating to liquor. The majority answered this question in the negative, but Justice McReynolds, Sutherland and Butler strongly dissented, holding that there is now no tax on the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes, and that seizure of automobiles under the taxing laws of the revised statutes is invalid.

Justice Stone announced that he concurred in the general decision of the majority, but could not accept the grounds on which the majority opinion was based.

Reather Avery, 8 years old, who escaped death under a Missouri-Pacific passenger train while coasting at the Water street crossing Saturday afternoon, will be permitted to go home this week, City Hospital physicians said today.

The boy, who was carried under the rear coach of a rapidly moving passenger train when he lost control of his sled, according to witnesses, escaped with lacerations and abrasions of the scalp and face, although dragged 75 feet down the tracks. A passerby, who picked up the boy as he reappeared from beneath the rear trucks of the coach, found him dazed but not unconscious.

MORALS SUBJECT OF LECTURE
Present-Day Frankness Dangerous, Says Ethical Society Speaker

Frankness about intimate moral questions has been carried to a point of dangerous absurdity, Dr. Henry Neumann of Brooklyn, N. Y., declared in an address at yesterday's meeting of the Ethical Society at Sheldon Memorial. Dr. Neumann said the home was more fit for discussion of those questions than the moving picture show even the school.

"Much that has been palmed off as the new morality of a younger generation does not come from the young and is not new at all," he pointed out.

"Often it comes from older folk who are rationalizing their own indulgences. It is not new, but old as the oldest self-surrender. And yet the fruits of this moral decay are paraded as the hope of a better future!"

DONATIONS $557,000 SHORT ON SATURDAY

Leaders Believe Reports From Industrial and County Units Will Greatly Reduce Deficit.

The Community Fund's 10-day drive for $1,850,000 will close this evening with a mass meeting of workers at Hotel Chase when it is expected the total of subscriptions will be $100,000 less than the organization deems necessary to carry on its 50 member agencies during 1927.

In spite of sloppy streets yesterday, a city-wide canvass for new prospects was made with the hope of finding 5000 more people who would contribute an average of $20 each. A general appeal was made in the Protestant churches and many ministers allowed the distribution of pledge cards among their congregations. A final effort is being made today to make the drive a success.

"Our workers are making a gallant effort to reach the goal," Walter Wilson, executive chairman, said today, "but we know from experience that their job is harder one than they admit. The trouble is that too many people are shifting their responsibility to their neighbor, and the neighbor is handing it on to someone else. It takes a few people in this city who would not miss $10,000, and there ought to be thousands who would not miss $10 or $20 or $50 divided into quarterly payments. There are plenty to whom the gift of a few dollars every three months would mean nothing, and who could, by acting, relieve a serious situation."

Henry Stevens Presents His Alibi

bluefish that was weighed by Henry Stevens, corroborated Stevens' alibi and was positive she saw Henry Stevens on the beach around 10 p. m. or a little later, on the night of the murder. Her husband, in an affidavit to the prosecutor, was uncertain as to the date the bluefish was caught.

"If you're wrong about the bluefish being caught on the night of Sept. 14, your whole story's wrong, isn't it?" Simpson asked on cross-examination. "Yes," she replied. Then Simpson pressed for the little details of what was done that night and in answer to a question the witness said: "I know I was on the beach at or near 10 p. m. Sept. 14, and I know Henry Stevens was there."

She said that "a man named Palmer" had talked with her about the affair. Nathaniel Palmer is a member of counsel for the defense. After Mrs. Applegate had left the witness stand, her husband, who is a carpenter, was called to testify. Like the other alibi witnesses, he said he was fishing on the beach at Lavallette the evening of Sept. 14, 1922. His wife was with him.

Stevens changed his hook. "I saw Henry Stevens directly in front of his house," said Applegate. "His fishing apparatus was cast out. He was fishing. I had quite some trouble that evening. I had few bites. I saw some fish that weighed a pound or a pound and a half. He (Stevens) gave me a hook. He changed it for me, put it on my line. It was with that hook that I caught the six-pound blue."

He then related how the fish was weighed on Henry Stevens' hand scales, light being needed to see the figures on the scales. Applegate said he saw Stevens several times in the evening before he told him "goodnight, about 10 or 10:15."

The next week, the witness said, reporters came to see him about Henry Stevens and he recalled the evening.

On cross-examination, Simpson produced the witness' testimony before the grand jury that returned the indictments.

Question as to Date.
"Did you say then that you thought it (the fish) was caught Friday night?" asked the prosecutor. "I told you it was caught the night of the murder," answered the witness.

Shown what Simpson presented as his signature to the statement, before the grand jury, Applegate said he thought it was his, but could not swear to it because, "I don't think I ought to swear to that because it has been out of my hands."

"Mr. Applegate, did you say under oath that you caught the fish on Friday night?" asked Simpson. "I don't remember making such a statement," replied the witness.

"I never heard him question before," said Applegate at one stage during cross-examination when Simpson was attempting to prove that the witness' testimony today was at variance with what he had told the Jersey City detectives when they were developing the State's case.

Clashes With Simpson.
Simpson turned to witness' testimony before the grand jury, and despite his confusion and inability to follow the rapid fire interrogations of the prosecutor, the fisherman was not terrified.

"I've got a little sympathy in my heart and that's more than you have," he told Simpson.

"Didn't you tell the grand jury you couldn't remember the day the bluefish was caught?" Simpson continued. "You told me that," he replied. "When I came in the room you told them this is the man who recalls the night of the murder but can't remember what night the bluefish was caught."

JEALOUS MARRIED MAN KILLS WIDOW IN CAFE

Shoots Self; He Deserted Wife and Three Children to Follow Her West.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—A story of many conquests by a young widow, finally slain by the most persistent of her suitors, has been unfolded here with the death of Mrs. Betty Claire King. She was shot to death in a restaurant Saturday night while diners looked on. Her assailant was George W. Barnett, who deserted a wife and three children in Minneapolis to follow the widow.

After killing Mrs. King Barnett shot himself through the head. Detectives learned that Mrs. King had had a number of admirers in the past years. Sometimes several at a time. Even on the night she was killed, police say, she had planned a meeting with a man with whom her name had been linked recently. Barnett's jealousy of this man is thought to have been the immediate motive for the murder.

Mrs. King married Lieut. Robert King, U. S. N., somewhere in the northwest about 1916. King shortly afterward was transferred to Newport News, Va., but his bride did not go with him. He is said to have been killed in an automobile accident in Dorchester, Mass., some years ago.

The story is that Mrs. King married C. W. Cedergust, wealthy rancher of Santa Cruz, Cal., inducing him to desert property to her. Cedergust, however, obtained an annulment of the marriage. He learned that Barnett was in Santa Cruz during their honeymoon. Mrs. King turned back the property he had given her.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 22.—George W. Barnett, who was standing beside me and the other was about half way down the stairs.

Mrs. Wilson said she saw Henry Stevens the next day about 7 a. m. near his garage dressing fish. In the afternoon, she said, he drove her and her daughters to Point Pleasant in his station wagon. She said she fixed the date by the fact that her daughters were returning to Holyoke College. On cross-examination, Mrs. Wilson denied that Henry Stevens had told her of the catching of the bluefish and had asked her to make a statement to that effect. She also denied having told Simpson's investigators that she knew nothing of the fish.

Elaine and Alice, Mrs. Wilson's daughters, testified intent how Henry Stevens had called at the Lavallette home about 10:30 or 11 o'clock on the night of the murder to make final arrangements for taking them to the station the next day.

The state's case is built upon the theory that the murders occurred between 10:15 and 10:30 p. m. Charles S. Wilson told of meeting at Jersey City the train that carried his wife and daughters from Lavallette Sept. 15, 1922.

Dickman's Story Attacked.
To combat the testimony of Henry L. Dickman, former state trooper now serving a term in a military prison at Alcatraz, Cal., for desertion from the army, that he met Henry Stevens on a fishing pier at Lavallette Feb. 23, 1923, and questioned him about the murders, the defense called Oliver Cromwell Grinnell, lithographer, who lives at Bay Shore, Long Island, in the summer, and in New York City in the winter.

Grinnell testified he was with Henry Stevens in Miami, Fla., in the winter of 1923, and that they began a fishing trip Feb. 18, that year. This corroborated testimony Henry Stevens gave to Elizabeth, N. J., gave testimony to offset that given by Mrs. Anna Hoag, a State witness, who told of Henry Stevens calling at her home—then the Phillips farm house, near the spot where the bodies of Mrs. Mills and Dr. Hall were found—in August, 1924, "excited and ready to collapse" and of his asking her to tell about the "tragedy that occurred here."

PROSECUTOR'S ATTEMPTS TO BREAK HENRY STEVENS' NERVE AT HALL-MILLS TRIAL FAIL

Defendant's Straightforward Statement That He Knew Nothing of the Murder Makes Good Impression.

By DOROTHY DIX.
(Copyright, 1926.)
SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 22.—There was no gainsaying the good impression made by the simple, frank, straightforward story Henry Stevens told on the witness stand Saturday and there were few who heard it who did not feel that whoever may have slain Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, he at least had washed his hands of blood guiltiness. He and his brother Willie and his sister, Dr. Hall's widow, are on trial charged with the murder of Mrs. Mills.

As Henry Stevens sat in the witness chair, he looked very like the English squire from whom he is descended. He is a stocky, sturdy man, with thick black hair just beginning to turn gray, and steady dark eyes that look one straight in the face. An outdoor man, with a skin tanned by wind and sun. A hunter and fisherman with something of the steadiness of hunter and the large patience of fisherman in his manner.

Throughout the long and bitter cross-examination to which Senator Simpson subjected him, he kept himself thoroughly in hand, never once losing his temper, or his poise; or raising his voice. Simpson raged at him and roared at him. He flung at him sarcasm, hints, insinuations, but they broke as fluffing against the Henry Stevens' imperturbability as spray against a granite rock.

Effort to Wreck Stevens' Nerve.
And Henry Stevens was put to the supreme test, for Senator Simpson began his cross-examination by offering him the ultimate insult that one man can offer another—an accusation of insanity.

Henry Stevens adored and revered his mother, and at this his face went as white as chalk, and his nails bit into his clenched hands until there were scars there when he left the witness stand, but he kept the iron curb on himself as he answered the question. "Well, the how do you account for your looking so different from the way he does?"

Evidently Senator Simpson's aim was to break Stevens' nerve, for when asking him about the fish knife he used in cleaning his catch at Lavallette, the little lawyer snatched up and snatched out of its box the grisly cast that had been used to demonstrate how Mrs. Mills was killed and put it on the stand before the witness.

"Now show us," he shouted, "how you could cut off a woman's head as easily as you could the head of a fish." But at this Stevens only grinned and replied, "You don't do it the same way." Weeks Kelly, tea at the home of Mrs. Nelson Morris, and then back to Lavallette for dinner. Gen. Parshing was a guest at the luncheon. Samuel Hill, millionaire, whose Maryhill (Wash.) museum the queen dedicated, and who left the train at Seattle after becoming involved in the disputes aboard it, appeared at the Kelly luncheon. With him was Miss Mary Birkhead, a member of the Hill party who left the train at Denver.

Princess Beana went to Calvary Church, then took luncheon with the rector, the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker. She was accompanied by Miss Ida Marr, her governess, and J. B. Ayres, Ford Motor Co. representative, who said he was in the car during the drive at the request of Queen Marie. He was dismissed from the royal train in Seattle when Col. John H. Carroll, in charge of the special, objected to newspaper articles quoted in Ayres.

The Princess was driving her own car after the church services when Eugene Roberts, one of her motorcycle escorts, collided with an automobile and was slightly injured. She got out and helped him into her own machine, then she and her companion, Miss Ida Marr, walked several blocks to the Ambassador Hotel.

$326 STOLEN FROM SAFE IN DOWNTOWN BUILDING

Pet Milk Co. and Chicago Lumber & Coal Co. Offices Entered by Burglars

Burglars last night hammered off the combination of a safe in the general offices of the Pet Milk Co., 832-846 Arcade Building, and departed with the combination and $326, taken from the safe. The office was entered, presumably, by means of a skeleton key.

The burglars also entered the offices of the Chicago Lumber & Coal Co., 820-822, and took $5 from a desk. The desk and a door were "jimmied" open. A safe was not disturbed.

The building manager said two private watchmen, an elevator operator, and a woman cleaner were in the building last night. He thinks the burglars sneaked in early today.

der only when he bought a paper at Monmouth Junction. When he read that Dr. Hall had been found dead by the side of Mrs. Mills, it was the first time that he had ever heard of Mrs. Mills.

A Family Characteristic.
The Stevens family is a self-contained, reserved family. The emotions lie deep. Its members do not easily express what they feel, and so although family fealty had sent Henry Stevens to his sister in New York, they did not find much to say to each other. She could not throw herself into her brother's arms to weep out her sorrow on his breast. He did not know what to say to comfort her, and so he said, "We didn't talk much about the murder. We didn't know anything about how it happened."

But one thing Mrs. Hall did say to him that was the very essence of tragedy. She said: "If Edward was in Mrs. Mills' company, it was for some excellent reason."

And there spoke the spirit of every woman who has shut her eyes to her husband's faults, who has refused to believe what she knew was true because she has felt that she could not face the truth and live.

To poor Mrs. Hall something worse than the death of her husband had happened. The man she thought he was had been killed, and her only comfort was to delude herself into believing that the horror of his unfaithfulness was not true.

After Henry Stevens' examination, various friends and neighbors of Lavallette came forward to prove an alibi for him, and tell that they had fished and talked with him on the momentous two days in September. Unfortunately, most of them seem to have had an affidavit of fishing in their pockets, and the prosecution made the most.

But Henry Stevens' story stood.

In the afternoon came the telegram from his cousin, Edwin Carpenter, saying that Dr. Hall had been killed, and telling him to come at once. He left on the next train and found out about the murder.

FAT AND THIN SHOULD STAY SO, SURGEON SAYS

Dr. Lorenz of Vienna, Back U. S., Declares Medicines Won't Help.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Dr. Adolf Lorenz, bloodless surgeon of Vienna, arrived on the Berlin yesterday to resume the visits among the poorer classes which he has made six times previously. When and where he will rest work has not been decided.

"I love your country and I want to do all I can for it while I am here in order to pay the debt of gratitude that Austria owes America for relief work," said Dr. Lorenz. "I should like to live here, but I am too old (he is 73) and the quota restrictions are very stringent."

"Congenital deformities do not increase as the family increases, despite what anyone says. However, the acquired deformities resulting from tuberculosis, infantile paralysis and like diseases are on the increase both here and in Europe, due to the fact that the number of epidemics of infantile paralysis in the United States have not been checked and that the people of Europe are prone to tuberculosis due to malnutrition as a result of the war."

When questioned as to his methods of preserving his energy and health, Dr. Lorenz smiled faintly and remarked:

"I don't play golf, for the simple reason that Austrian golf courses are used for raising potatoes. I like motorcycling best of all. The work day for me is divided into two parts, with a rest of several hours at noon separating them. I eat two meals a day and just about what I want. Do I drink? Certainly, and I wish I could get my beer here; wine occasionally, but never whiskey—it is poison."

He was asked if he had any cure for obesity. His reply was: "If you are so constituted to be fat, you must be fat, and if you are inclined to be thin, you may overeat to the point of indigestion and still not become fat. No medicine taken to either gain or lose weight are of any use, and I do think American ladies are starving themselves to a point where their health is impaired in their efforts to remain thin."

KILLED WHEN HUNTING
NEAR HOME IN COUNTY

Oliver W. J. Hagemann, 21, Shot Accidentally by His Brother-in-Law.

Oliver W. J. Hagemann, 21 years old, of Manchester and Mason roads, St. Louis County, was shot and killed accidentally near his home yesterday afternoon by his brother-in-law and hunting companion, Arthur Koewing, of Rock Hill, when Koewing stumbled in a snow-covered ditch.
The men were in a field across the road from Hagemann's home.
Koewing was about 12 feet away from Hagemann at the time of stumbling. In his fall his shotgun was discharged and a load of bird shot struck Hagemann in the left breast near the heart, which was pierced by some of the pellets.
"I'm shot!" Hagemann cried, as he dropped to the ground, dying after a minute or two.
Hagemann's father, Henry Hagemann, was standing on a hill nearby and witnessed the shooting. He and Koewing assured Coroner Dopp of its accidental nature and a verdict of accident was returned today.

NOVEMBER SNOWFALL
TOTAL NOW 10.4 INCHES

Thaw Followed by Freeze and Fog and Smoke Result in Many Delays

A trifle more snow fell in St. Louis on Saturday night than the total for November of any previous year, and combined with Wednesday's downfall, which was even heavier, the total snowfall for the two days was 10.4 inches.

The last snow started about 4 p. m. Saturday and was continuous for 11 hours, measuring 4.1 inches. Wednesday there was 6.3 inches, the record for any 24-hour period in November in St. Louis. On Nov. 25-26, 1895, there was four inches of snow, comparing with the previous record of four inches for all of November, 1887. There was a trace of snow this month on the ninth.

Some of Wednesday's snow had frozen on city and country pavements. Saturday's fall made a soft blanket over this, and there was a slight thaw yesterday, followed by a cold snap last night, which made streets and sidewalks slippery today. The lowest temperature recorded officially was 18 degrees early this morning, but suburban residents reported their thermometers were as low as 11.

Fog and Smoke Cause Delays.

Fog combining with smoke, due to lack of wind, caused additional difficulty in the movement of traffic in the morning rush hour today. Many suburban and through trains reached Union Station as much as 20 minutes late because of congestion in the terminal district. Street car schedules were disrupted and knots of trolley riders waited, stamping in the cold, at numerous corners. Many automobile radiators were frozen. Pedestrians in many sections have been forced to the streets since Saturday night because sidewalks were not cleared. Two hundred laborers, 20 wagons and two motor trucks were working on the downtown streets today to remove the snow, starting westward at Fourth street on the principal thoroughfares. A smaller force was assembled downtown and near Union Station yesterday to make a new start on the snow removal job begun Thursday.

About 100 men were put to work yesterday cleaning church and residence sidewalks and railroad yards through the Amity Association. The new Municipal Lodging House, 2nd North Fourteenth street, was thrown open generally for the first time last night and accommodated 110 men, who left in their own clothing on bedsprings. When a fumigating plant is completed, lodgers will be supplied bed clothing and their own clothes will be fumigated nightly. The kitchen has not been completed to supply breakfast and supper, but arrangements were made to feed 25 of the men, who were put to work cleaning sidewalks around City Hall Park. Police stations housed 51 homeless men last night.

An unidentified man about 70 years old died from exposure to the cold in a shed on an abandoned farm near Mascoutah, Ill., Saturday. The frozen body of an unidentified Negro about 45 was found early today in the rear yard at 1411 North Eighth street. Death apparently was due to the cold. David Barnett, 45, was found in a lot at Kingshighway and Penrose street yesterday, suffering seriously from exposure. At city hospital he said he resided with his family on South Broadway, but could not recall the address.

Snow on a one-story garage at 5935 Delmar boulevard yesterday broke through the roof, damaging three automobiles. There has been some coasting on Art Hill, Forest Park, and other park slopes, but the city made no special preparations for this.

By the Associated Press.

Some of the characters are drawn from real life. Devon folks whom the novelist loved and who are no more, and he shrinks from the idea of seeing them on the stage. Phillpotts sends the members of the cast wines and other gifts whenever another "hundredth night" is reached.

Keeping Pace With the Public Need

Just about a year ago the Shubert-Jefferson Theatre in the Union Electric Light and Power Company Building unslung its sign and moved out. This week you will attend the opening of an Electrical Store in the same building, which for beauty and convenience will have no equal in the country.

Better Public Service is the policy of Union Electric Light and Power Company and we congratulate St. Louis for supporting a Company quick to recognize the public need and ready to meet it.

If, with our merchandise, we helped a bit to win your patronage and good will we are glad and now point with pardonable pride to the fact that most of the beautiful imported lamps so amply displayed in the New Store are from our Studios—especially imported for this occasion and many the product of those master craftsmen of the old world.

GIRL BRIDE OBTAINS DIVORCE

Guy H. Wright Appears in Suit as Best Friend of Niece.
Mrs. Elizabeth Simmons of 5475 Clemens avenue obtained a divorce today from William D. Simmons Jr. of Tuscaloosa, Ala., for desertion and general indignities. There was no contest.
The plaintiff's maiden name, Wright, was restored. She is a minor and her uncle, Guy M. Wright, a capitalist, appeared as her next friend in the suit. She testified that she was married in March, 1925, and that her husband deserted her Sept. 10, 1925.

BODY OF SLAIN MAN

IDENTIFIED BY OFFICER

Deputy Sheriff, at Undertaker's on Another Mission Recognizes Dominick Leone.

The body of the man found murdered Friday in a plowed field at Ashby and St. Charles roads was identified today as that of Dominick Leone, brother of a former Wellston restaurant proprietor.

The identification was made by Deputy Sheriff Charles Thompson who chanced to look at the body while he was in the Bopp undertaking establishment at Kirkwood this afternoon on another investigation.

Leone's body was found by a county highway crew. Because it was almost completely covered by snow which fell Wednesday, it is believed he had been dead at least two days. He had been shot in the head and apparently robbed, for his pockets had been turned inside out.

This morning a coroner's open verdict of homicide was returned in his death.

C. D. MATHEWS TO SUCCEED GARY AS HIGHWAY CHAIRMAN

Remaining Republican Member of Board Favored by Baker; Many Seek Appointment.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 22.—The resignation of Theodore Gary of Kansas City, as chairman of the State Highway Commission, effective at once, has been received by Gov. Baker, but the latter today said he would take no action to fill the vacancy for two or three days. Baker intimated he would not select C. U. Philley, president of the St. Joseph Board of Police Commissioners, who it is understood was viewed favorably by Gary as his successor.

"I notice they are picking my appointee for me," Baker said when asked about Philley, "but that probably will be subjected to change." Baker said C. D. Mathews of St. Louis, a Republican, new vice chairman of the commission, probably would be elevated to the chairmanship and the new appointee would succeed Mathews, as a member of the commission. Gary and Mathews were Republican members of the commission, which is bi-partisan.

The Governor said it would be unfair to the commission to designate a new member as chairman and that Mathews was the most eligible member for advancement to the chairmanship. Mathews was reappointed last January for a six-year term, expiring in December, 1931.

A rumor was current in political circles that Chief Highway Engineer B. H. Piepmeyer would retire in the near future, to join Gary's telephone organization. Piepmeyer declined to comment on the report.

NINE MEN MISSING AFTER EXPLOSION WRECKS TUGBOAT

Body of Deck Hand Recovered Near Anacortes, Wash.; Vessel Sinks in 200 Feet of Water.

By the Associated Press.
ANACORTES, Wash., Nov. 22.—With one body recovered, a search was made by United States Coast Guardsmen today for the rest of the crew of nine on the 35-foot tug Bahada, which sank after a terrific explosion two miles from here yesterday. The body was identified as that of William F. Hansen, deck hand and brother of the ship's master. It was washed ashore at Samish Island, 19 miles from the scene of the blast.

A search of the beaches of the many islands near here was begun at once by volunteers. The likelihood of anyone escaping the explosion, which demolished the ship, was declared slight, however. Wreckage of the pilot house and lifeboats were found on Jack Island, five miles away. The vessel, which was towing a log raft to Bellingham, Wash., now lies in 200 feet of water.

A fragment of the ship's wheel was found on the beach near here. It had been hurtled more than a mile.

LOUIS COHEN ESTATE VALUED

AT $367,602 IN INVENTORY

Includes $27,750 in Real Estate and $339,852 in Personal Property.
An inventory of the estate of Louis Cohen of 5129 Vernon avenue, president of the L. Cohen Grocer Co., wholesalers, who died Sept. 12, filed today, values his property at $367,602. This includes real estate at the southeast corner of Seventh and Carr streets worth $27,750, and $339,852 in personal property.

The chief personalty comprised 4142 shares of common stock of the company, valued at $207,100 at a $50 par and 2516 shares of preferred stock valued at $125,800 at the same par. Louis B. Sher, attorney for the estate, said Mr. Cohen held three pieces of real estate, worth $100,000, jointly with his wife, which passed to her automatically. By his will, she receives one-half of the mentioned property and the balance is divided among three sons and four daughters.

Three Men Killed at Crossing

BROOK HAVEN, Miss., Nov. 22.—Three men were killed near here when a Mississippi Central passenger train struck an automobile, the driver of which tried to beat the train ahead of a crossing. The dead: Marion Smith, 45 years old, Roy Goldman, 24, and Claude For-

IDENTIFY MURDER SUSPECT AS ESCAPED MICHIGAN CONVICT

Negro Held in Carlinville for Killing Policeman Says Commission Fired Shots.

A Negro held in Carlinville jail for the murder of a patrolman George Staats, who was shot early Wednesday by one of two Negroes he sought to arrest in a box car near Carlinville, has been identified by fingerprints as Frank Smith, an escaped convict from Michigan State Penitentiary. Carlinville authorities announced today that he had confessed he was one of the two Negroes, insisting however, that his companion fired the shots.

After Staats was killed, Smith was arrested carrying a .38-caliber revolver from which two bullets had been discharged. He said he was George Dennis, 26 years old, but fingerprints sent to St. Louis police proved he was Smith, who escaped June 7, 1925, from a convict road gang near Jackson, Mich. He was serving an indeterminate sentence for assault to rob. Staats' partner, John Kauffman, identified Smith as one of the Negroes. He said the shots were fired at Staats but it was too dark to tell which Negro had the revolver.

ARMED BAND RESCUES MURDERER FROM JAIL

Takes Officer's Slayer From Cell in Sallisaw, Ok., and Speeds Away.

By the Associated Press.
MUSKOGEE, Ok., Nov. 22.—Matthew Kimes, young murderer of Perry Chuculate, Sequoyah County Deputy Sheriff, apparently has made good his escape after having been released at 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning from the Sequoyah County jail at Sallisaw by a band of armed men.

Authorities declare the jail delivery party used two motor cars and think that after leaving Sallisaw in the direction of Muskogee the party divided and at least one of the machines drove into Arkansas.

Kimes' young wife was in the rescue party, officers believe, and they have been told that another woman was in the band, possibly the wife of George Kimes, Matthew's brother, who is now in the State prison for his part in the murder of Chuculate.

Matthew, sentenced to a life term, was awaiting transfer to the penitentiary when he escaped. Ray Leach, night watchman, saw a strange car drive into the town and park near the railroad station shortly after midnight, he said. The machine carried four men. Leach watched the party for a time and then accosted the men. Two of the men promptly drew shotguns and ordered him to lead them to the jail.

There J. M. King, night jailer, was forced to give up his keys and the men went through the jail, shouting for Matthew. The young murderer was asleep but awoke after several calls. Swiftly donning his clothes and taking a shotgun which one of the men handed him, he hurried with them to their autos. There they were joined by the two other men, who had been standing guard near the jail, and the car sped away to the west. Outside the town, officers were told, the rescue machine joined another car in which were said to have been two women and another man.

"GLAD IT'S DONE," HEIRESS SAYS AFTER VATICAN DECREE

Former Consuelo Vanderbilt Plans Another Honeymoon With Second Husband.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—"I'm glad it's done. I have prayed long for it," said the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, referring to the dissolution of her marriage to the Duke of Marlborough by the Vatican, according to the Paris correspondent of the London Sunday Chronicle.

The correspondent, who interviewed the American heiress in Paris, quoted Consuelo, who since has married Lieutenant-Colonel Jacques Balsan, a Frenchman, as saying:

"My husband and I have not decided when we shall be married again by religious ceremony, but this probably will be done in Paris. After that we may go on another honeymoon, to the Riviera and perhaps to New York."

VAGARIES OF MRS. STOCKE RELATED IN WILL CONTEST

Mrs. Charles Galloway, Wife of Organist, Doubled Her Neighbor's Sanity.

More descriptions of the peculiarities of Mrs. Caroline Stocke during the last years of her life were given in Circuit Judge Hamilton's court today by Mrs. Charles Galloway of 4171 Magnolia avenue, a next door neighbor, appearing as a witness for Mrs. Stocke's son, Arthur W. Butterfield.

Butterfield is contesting Mrs. Stocke's will in which she cut him off with $10,000, left $15,000 to charity and the residue of her $110,000 estate to his stepfather, Jacob Stocke, now 84 years old. Mrs. Galloway, whose husband is a church organist, testified that in 1918 when she moved to Magnolia avenue, Mrs. Stocke was a neat, orderly, well-dressed and intelligent woman. In the years which followed, she changed gradually until Mrs. Galloway doubted her sanity. She became untidy, wore dresses made of bed ticking, wore unmade stockings, and sometimes went out in a petticoat, forgetting her skirt. She talked irrationally at times, Mrs. Galloway said, and was obsessed with a fear of burglars. In 1920, Mrs. Galloway declared, Mrs. Stocke confided that she intended to put her money in a trust estate and leave it eventually to her son. It was in 1922 that she executed the will which Butterfield contests on the ground that she was unduly influenced by Stocke.

GREATER REGARD FOR MINORITIES IN RUMANIA SOUGHT

Petition Signed by 60 Eminent Americans to Be Presented to Queen Before She Sails.

INDEPENDENT, OF BOSTON, SPONSOR

Distress "Under Discrimination" Recited, Although Conditions Are Declared Better Than They Were

The Independent of Boston prints the following article on a petition for better treatment of racial and religious minorities in Rumania which is being prepared for presentation to Queen Marie before she sails for home—

An impressive petition in behalf of the minorities living in Rumania has been signed by 60 eminent Americans and will be presented to Queen Marie before her departure for home. For seven years this country on the part of people sympathetic with their sufferings religious and racial kinsmen in the unhappy country, and the friends of the following page is the practical expression of the consensus about the grave injustice.

About 4,000,000 people composed the minorities living in Transylvania under Rumanian rule. Racially they are Saxons, Magyars and Jews. In religion they are Baptists, Jews, Lutherans, Presbyterians, Roman Catholics and Unitarians. The petition recites the distress "under the practice of discrimination." While stating that their situation is better than has been, it says that "much remains to be done," and the Queen if she will exert her very great influence, can accomplish much.

Invitation is given to the public to sign the petition, and The Independent has undertaken to distribute printed forms and furnish prompt information to all persons who wish to join in this great service of human helpfulness.

A notable confirmation of conditions has come within a week from a leading American churchman, Dr. Edgar Y. Mullins, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, who has just returned from a visit to Rumania. He speaks for his people, but his witness is true of all the rest. "Conditions for Baptists in Rumania," he says, "are as bad as they can be, and have been asked to stress that they have a worse position than the Unitarians and the Jews. Promises have been made with number, and no improvement taken place. I would 10 times rather have Soviet Russia for treatment of nonconformists." Mullins states that the Baptist World Alliance will appeal direct to the League of Nations.

Commissions Report. Several commissions which have gone into Rumania in the past seven years—in 1919, 1922 and 1924—have reported seven wrongs, especially the commission of 1924 composed of Dr. Louis Cornish, Dr. Sylvester Veach, Dr. Charles E. Schaeffer, representing the American Commission on the Rights of Religious Minorities. Their report, compiled by Dr. Cornish, published as "Religious Minorities in Transylvania," has been widely read and commended for its accuracy and restraint. The American Commission which sent the commission is composed of 59 persons, including Chief Justice Taft, the Hon. Herbert Hoover and Judge Julian Mack.

The petition to Queen Marie among its signatories Roland Boyden, former member of the Reparations Commission, President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University, Dr. S. Parkes Cadmus, president of the Federal Council Churches, Edwin S. Webster, president of Stone & Webster, Ralph Stephen S. Wise, and many other persons of national prominence. These speak not only in behalf of 35,000,000 of related church people in the United States but in interest of international peace and Rumania's internal well-being. The petition is not concerned with desire to foment trouble, it is a liberally planned to assist the Rumanian statesmen who are endeavoring to show to the world that outside of Rumania there are thousands of people who care. Dr. Cornish reports a conversation with the Hon. Ion G. Du Rumanian Minister of Foreign Affairs, to the effect that the racial minorities—one-fourth of the country's population—in their present discontent are ready to rebel. Rumania were attacked, says Du, they would join the enemy. Without their loyalty, he concluded, Rumania cannot continue as she today.

Petition to Queen Marie

Following are the text and the names of some of the signers of a petition to be presented to Queen Marie of Rumania before she sails for home:

"To the Queen of Rumania: We present to your Majesty our respectful salutations, and as citizens of the United States we welcome you to our country as an honored guest. We take advantage of your presence here to petition your Majesty to give your distinguished personal consideration to those religious minorities in Rumania suffering under the practice of discriminations: Baptists, Jews, Lutherans, Presbyterians, Unitarians and Roman Catholics. We know that hopeful progress has already been made by the Rumanian Government toward a solution of this problem. We rejoice that the condition of these minorities has been bettered, but much remains to be done, and it is our conviction that if your royal influence could be further exerted on their behalf their present condition would be vastly improved. We hope that Your Majesty may continue to enjoy your visit, and wish you Godspeed upon your homeward journey."

say MacDonald, former British Prime Minister, said when the League of Nations was signed that South-eastern Europe was the danger spot that menaced the peace of the world. Presumably he had Rumania in mind. James G. MacDonald of the Foreign Policy Association, an acknowledged American authority, says that "the most serious danger to the peace of the world is the 'unjust and discriminatory treatment of minority groups within a state may lead to separate or revolutionary movements on the part of these groups.' The good-will and fairness of their governments will determine the success of the working out of the whole minority problem. Of Rumania, in particular, he warns that there is real danger on account of the reported 'violence and corruption of the Rumanian officials.' A prominent official of one of the minorities has written within a few weeks to America as follows: 'The pressure of the world's public opinion has worked many changes in the situation, though we are not in full exercise of our rights. In order that they should reach the position which is due us as a minority, there is need, besides our struggle here, that impartial and unbiased factors in other lands shall give their study to our case. This opinion, we believe, expressed the view held by all the minorities.'

Loan Object of Visit. One of the objects of Queen Marie's visit to States is the floating of a loan for Rumania. American bankers have been informed that the Tripartite Treaty, under which the minorities are supposed to be governed, is not honored as it should be. They are requested to inquire about it, because of its fundamental importance in connection with the stability of the country. Rumania pledged full liberty, security of property, equity before the law, the full use of minority languages, especially in the courts, the preservation of endowment lands inviolate for the churches, colleges, and schools, and state aid to the churches. All these obligations have been flagrantly violated with the single exception of aid to the churches, which continues greatly reduced. The record of violence against the person, of confiscation of property, of tyranny and 'intimidation,' has been described in meticulous detail and corroborated. While these grosser forms of misgovernment have been lessened, the inward evil of religious and racial repression and persecution continues as a grave wrong to good people and a menace to the peace of the Balkans and the world. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have gone to these people from America to keep them alive and their schools and churches going. Now America speaks through the mouths of many of her leading citizens, and calls upon all who will give their names to the petition. To be well done it must be done quickly, for the Queen is leaving these shores for Rumania on Dec. 11. Write us today.

Since this article appeared Queen Marie has cut short her tour and has booked passage on the Berengaria sailing from New York Wednesday. Liquor Candidates in Majority. TORONTO, Ontario, Nov. 22.—Candidates in favor of Premier Ferguson's policy of the sale of liquor by Government permit are in a slight majority among the candidates officially chosen for 113 districts at the provincial legislative elections for which will be held Dec. 1.

STATUS OF BRITISH DOMINIONS GETS FORMAL APPROVAL

London Press Says Official Recognition of Autonomy Makes No Important Change in Relationship.

DOMINIONS TO SIGN IMPERIAL TREATIES

"United Kingdom" Omitted From Title of Monarch Describing Relation to Britain and Ireland.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Nov. 22.—Inter-imperial relations as set forth on a report by the committee of Premiers of the Imperial conference, which established the dominions, officially as autonomous units, equal in status within the empire, are commented upon favorably by the London papers.

Criticism, even of the details, are few. A point generally made is that nothing of importance is changed. The Daily Telegraph says the report gives fuller formal recognition than heretofore to a state of things already in existence. The Morning Post declares those dominions that had worried about an unequal status found they had been forcing an open door. It is of the opinion that the foreign relations clauses the complex and may be found difficult.

(These clauses recommend that in future treaties the British Minister shall sign for Great Britain, with each dominion signing for itself, and recognize that in foreign relations neither Great Britain nor the dominions can be committed to acceptance of active obligations without the consent of their own governments.)

The Daily Mail believes the report should satisfy all the aspirations of the dominions, but that it does not alter essential conditions. At first sight, it says, the right of the dominions to make foreign treaties seems to multiply the diplomatic difficulties, but the right has been exercised in the past, and there is no real reason for alarm.

The Daily Express welcomes what it calls the negative results of the conference in leaving things much as they were before. It believes that the more loosely the empire is knit the more securely its parts are bound together. "No effort or dying organism could have produced such a report. Its general effect is one of closer unity and greater inherent strength."

The report as an admirable document emphasizing the strength of imperial relationship.

"United Kingdom" to Be Dropped From Royal Title. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The reorganization of the British empire by which the dominions are established officially as autonomous units, is credited largely to the efforts of General J. B. M. Hertzog, premier of the union of South Africa, by Eric H. Louw, commissioner from the union to the United States. Louw has just returned to New York from a conference with Premier Hertzog in London.

Louw said Premier Hertzog, six months ago, publicly outlined the position he took at the Imperial conference in demanding an official statement from the British Government defining the status of the dominions. Gen. Hertzog secured, said Louw, the two major points for which he contended—a declaration of full autonomy for the dominions in both external and internal affairs and a declaration of equality of status with Great Britain.

Under the reorganization plan the King's title will be altered to make clear that the status of the dominions is the same as that of the overseas dominions. To that end the words "United Kingdom" will be dropped and the new title will read: "George V, by grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British dominions beyond the seas, King, defender of the faith, Emperor of India."

AUTO DEATHS SET NEW RECORD Total of 676 Persons Killed in 78 Cities in Four Weeks. By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Deaths due to automobiles in the 78 largest cities of the United States during the four-week period ending Nov. 6 were 676, a total greater than those for any like period since the Department of Commerce began compiling automobile fatalities in 1925.

During the same period a year ago, the deaths were 612, and in four weeks ending Oct. 9, 1925, they were 656.

ADVOCATES UNIFIED DEVELOPMENT PLAN

Convention Here Likely to Adopt Secretary's Outline of National Policy in Resolutions.

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, recognized authority on business conditions and national resources, speaking today at the opening session of the Mississippi Valley Association at Hotel Statler, Valley Association, read at today's opening session by President Smith. The President wrote:

"Mr. James E. Smith: 'Much to my regret I find it impossible to accept your invitation to make an address at the convention of the Mississippi Valley Association in St. Louis. I cannot refrain, however, from sending a word to emphasize my interest in the principal matter to be considered. In my message to Congress I have expressed my opinion that the development of the waterways of the Mississippi for transportation purposes is of great importance to a large section of our country. I want this work to go on as rapidly as our financial resources will permit. To that end I had an additional item of $10,000,000 put into the present budget. Your association can be most helpful in crystallizing public sentiment and in considering which your waterways may be improved so as to furnish the maximum of service to your people and to the nation at large. 'CALVIN COOLIDGE.'" among themselves, but they lead from the Great Lakes to the sea, both at the gulf and the North Atlantic. "Our Government has worked at deepening channels in spots, and isolated projects for many years, but in our national policies we have missed the idea that to make a real successful transportation system requires large inter-connected systems of trunk lines from seaboard to great feeders from our lateral rivers, and consequent widespread and diversified traffic. We have begun important works at the outer ends and worked back. We would not build a great waterway system back toward the terminals and expect traffic to develop in the meantime. "If we are to substitute trains of steel barges on our rivers for cars we must not only have depth, but we must have interconnection, so that we may find employment for these box cars with diversified traffic meshing into the different seasons of the year. Without such a completed and inter-connected transportation system, we cannot expect the most economic transportation on any one section; we cannot expect that our waterways will perform their real duty either as to cost of transportation or as to supply of sufficient craft, or the building up of sound transportation companies to take advantage of their opportunities. Nor, without interconnection of our Great Mississippi system with the rest of the country, we will realize the full values of either."

Will Not Hurt Railroads. Secretary Hoover then discussed the cheapening of transportation by waterway development, saying that 1000 bushels of wheat can be transported 1000 miles on Great Lakes or at sea for $20 to $30 on a modern Mississippi barge from $50 to $70, and by rail from $150 to $200. "Railway rates cannot be reduced to pre-war levels without ruin to the rail systems, he said, but the delivery of wheat to Liverpool will result from the development of these resources in the heart of the country. "The whole interior waterways system is a problem of greater depth—a six or nine foot channel in all great waterways, the delivery of wheat to Liverpool of 6 to 15 cents a bushel, and that this would tend to lift the price of all wheat in the regions accessible by water. As to the general effect on population and industry, he continued: "The capital cost of completing our whole Mississippi system will probably not exceed a further $120,000,000 beyond present appropriations. It is obvious that our present transportation system must be enormously expanded if it will provide for the growth of population during the next 25 years. Already the great gateways and terminals are overcrowded, and their expansion means enormous expense. "During the past year the President has recommended an increase in the rivers and harbors appropriation of $10,000,000 for the more rapid consummation of the Mississippi system, bringing up expenditures in this quarter to somewhat near $20,000,000 per annum, a basis on which we could expect to see the main parts of this system completed and in operation in the next five or six years. Already the barge lines and traffic are increasing."

A great addition to the strength of these proposals was given by the President in his message to Congress, where, in a short paragraph, he covered the broad principles which we are today agitating, particularly on the great divisions of

Coolidge's Indorsement of Waterway Development Read to Convention

RESIDENT COOLIDGE wishes the work of waterways development to go on as rapidly as the country's financial resources will permit, he says in a letter to the Mississippi Valley Association, read at today's opening session by President Smith. The President wrote:

"Mr. James E. Smith: 'Much to my regret I find it impossible to accept your invitation to make an address at the convention of the Mississippi Valley Association in St. Louis. I cannot refrain, however, from sending a word to emphasize my interest in the principal matter to be considered. SECRETARY HOOVER.

the Mississippi system, the improvement of the Great Lakes, the opening of the Great Lakes outlet to the sea. "I could not sum up our proposals better than to quote his terse and lucid language in referring to these projects—'It is not incompatible with economy, for their nature does not require so much a public expenditure as capital investment which will be productive.'"

Appropriations Increased. "Congress has responded not only by the increase in appropriations, but in the rivers and harbors bill which has passed the House and is now before the Senate, it extends the items authorized to a great measure of pledge to completion in the development of our Great Mississippi system."

Secretary Hoover discussed the problems of levels of the Great Lakes, which was taken up in more detail by Congressman Newton in his speech at the afternoon session. He spoke also of the controversy between advocates of the St. Lawrence waterway and those favoring the all-American route, by reconstruction of canals from Oswego, N. Y., on Lake Ontario, to the Hudson River in the vicinity of Albany. The latter was the main theme of Representative Dempsey in his afternoon address. Dempsey being an advocate of the proposed waterway across New York State.

Both the Eastern waterway projects are feasible, the Secretary said, and expert reports on the comparative cost and advantages of the two will soon be completed. Of the decrease in lake levels, Secretary Hoover said 75 per cent has been due to the climatic cycle and 25 per cent to diversion of water at Chicago and in Canada. The Chicago diversion is essential to the connection between the lake and river waterways, he said, and he cited engineering authority for the statement that the levels could be restored, by engineering works at a cost of $5,000,000, sufficiently to overcome the effects of diversions. The climatic question is more serious, he said.

Outlining his plan for a national policy in development of water resources, Hoover touched the main points of his Seattle address of last August, saying: "The development of science in construction work, in transportation craft, in electrical power, in intensive agriculture, together with the new economic pressures resulting from the war and increasing population, have created possibilities of great wealth in practically every important river, stream and lake in our country. In each of our great drainages, some one or all of these different possible assets in navigation, power, reclamation, and protection for flood control are to be found. True conservation of water is not the prevention of use. Every drop that runs to the sea without yielding its full commercial returns means a national loss."

"We need to adopt a 4-finite resolution of vigorous development as rapidly as public use can be justified, but, beyond this, we need greater co-ordination and better organization and far wider conservation of the possibilities of each particular drainage. We should no longer act in terms of single power sites, single land projects, single navigation improvements, or local flood controls. We must act in terms of co-ordinated long-view development of each river and stream if we could secure its maximum utilization. "Unless we do co-ordinate these

NEWTON DEFENDS LAKE MICHIGAN WATER DIVERSION

Congressman Says Main Objection Is Set Up by Great Power Interests, Chiefly Canadian.

CITES OPINIONS OF U. S. ENGINEERS

Need for Inland Waterways in Central U. S. and the Plans Under Way Discussed.

Congressman Cleveland A. Newton of St. Louis, leader of the waterways bloc in the Lower House, spoke this afternoon before the Mississippi Valley Association, at Hotel Statler, in support of the present policy of a limited diversion of Lake Michigan water, at Chicago, into the Illinois-Mississippi inland waterways.

Newton charged that the present objections to such diversion was propaganda put forth by "great power interests," chiefly in Canada. The water diverted is not needed for the St. Lawrence waterway, he said, but it would be of value to power enterprises. "As to the complaints made by Milwaukee and other lake ports, of lowering of their harbor levels, Newton said that low water periods were known on the lakes long before the diversion of water at Chicago began. He further said that the level of Lakes Michigan and Huron could be raised by a system of works for regulating the flow from Lake Huron into the St. Clair River at Port Huron, Mich. The Canadian Government has raised the level of Lake Ontario six inches by such works at the mouth of the St. Lawrence, he said.

Conclusion of Engineers. "The engineers of the United States Army," Newton said, "as well as all the other leading hydraulic engineers of the United States, have agreed that the diversion of 10,000 cubic second-feet at Chicago has resulted in the lowering of the Great Lakes approximately five and one-half inches and no more, and that the remainder of the 40 inches of lowering (since 1918) is due to a lack of rainfall, and to power diversions and channel improvements at other points on the Canadian and American sides."

"It is further agreed by the great engineering authorities of the country that the lowering as a result of diversion is complete; it has been complete for more than 20 years; and that even though the diversion at Chicago should continue for a century, no further lowering would result. Yet the adroit and clever propaganda which has been circulated at the instance of the great power interests has led the great mass of the people in the United States to believe that the diversion is causing the levels to be constantly lowered, and that unless it is stopped the lakes will be finally drained."

This propaganda, Newton said, has painted pictures of ocean liners docking at lake ports, but it has not told of the intended by-product of 6,000,000 horsepower, seven-eighths of which will be generated in Canada; or of the further fact that Canada in future will permit power generated in the Dominion to be transmitted to the United States, but will require that the factories using it shall be located on Canadian soil.

Waterway Projects Discussed. He told of the need for inland water transportation in the central United States, and told of the waterway projects, totaling 6550 miles, adopted by Congress. This system, he said, will not be complete without a connection with Chicago and the lakes. He argued that it will be to the interest of the lake regions to have this connection.

"The future markets of the United States will be to the south of us," he said. "The records of the Department of Commerce show that the trade of the United States with Cuba last year was greater than it was with France, Central and South America, on the eastern and western sides, offer wonderful future markets for the products of the Middle West. The cities of the Great Lakes need the products of these, our Southern neighbors, such as steel, lumber, coffee, nitrates, sulphur, salt and many other of the necessities of life. Certainly it is in the interest of the lake regions to have a great waterway over a direct route across the

'POP' PROGRAM IS ONE OF POPULAR APPEAL

Patrons of yesterday afternoon's "pop" concert of the Symphony Orchestra found interesting diversion in Director Ganz' demonstration of the orchestra's new arrival, a travelogue of the orchestra with Mr. Ganz giving an explanation of the origin and purpose of each piece before it was played in solo. The soloist of the day was John Kiburtz who gave Chaminade's "Concert Piece for Flute and Orchestra" in the musically fashioned style of the composer. He was also first flutist of the orchestra. Upon an encore he played Huber's "Larghetto" accompanied by Mme. Pampaloni, principal harp soloist. The program, a truly popular appeal, included Elgar's "Pomp and Circumstance," the overture to Tchaikovsky's "Martha," three of the most beautiful songs ever written by German and Herbert's "March of the Toys."

different possibilities, we shall not only have created enormous losses, but enormous delays. We have also to face the fact that these great potentialities of development in water resources are fast drifting into the muck of litigation, political controversies and interstate quarrels which could be solved by a determination of broad programs for each stream solely in national interest.

"These problems are being dealt with today by three or four different departments of the Federal Government, even by different departments of the State governments, by private corporations, each agency separately advocating and advancing its own particular problem."

Mayors William E. Dever of Chicago, Louis B. Stigall, St. Joseph, Mo., and Hilary E. Howe of Nashville, Tenn., telegraphed that they expected to attend the convention.

Dunlap Describes Importance of Cheap Inland Rates.

"Agriculture and Water Transportation" was the theme of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dunlap. He told of the agricultural importance of the Mississippi River basin of the yield of wheat and corn in the valley states, and of the decrease of farm income from one-sixth to one-twelfth, and at present about one-tenth, of the national income.

"To hold and broaden our foreign markets," he said, "it is essential that we have cheap transportation that will help us maintain our position in these markets in competition with other world producers, but nearly as important is efficient and cheap transportation within our own country."

"Kansas is the largest wheat producing state. In order to market its surplus wheat, it must ship by rail some 800 miles to the Gulf, or at best 600 to 600 miles to Chicago."

Figures computed by the Department of Agriculture show that the average cost to the Kansas farmer of shipping his wheat to Liverpool via the Great Lakes and New York is 40.1 cents per bushel. The cost to Liverpool from Wichita, Kan., via the Gulf ports is 37.5 cents. Of this 37.5 cents, the rail charge makes up 25.4 cents, or more than two-thirds of it. With the price of wheat to the farmer in Kansas around $1.20 a bushel, the burden of freight on wheat for export is evident.

"This is a vital matter to our foreign trade. We must reduce the handicap of distance in every way possible by the use of nature's greatest highways, the rivers and the seas. Most of the commercial production of farm products in this vast inland territory must be moved long distances. While the center of population for the United States lies in Indiana, the center of urban population to be fed from commercial supplies lies farther to the east and north, while the center of production of the staples lies much farther west. As farm production in the Mississippi Valley increases with the increased demand from larger industrial populations in the East, the tonnage for transport will also increase. If the cities of the Middle West grow faster than the Eastern cities, under the stimulus of natural advantages, the direction of movement will be modified rather than the total amount.

"Freight rates bear rather heavily on farmers now, though not quite so heavily as when the prices were so low in 1920 to 1922. The situation was made all the more acute because the increases in freight rates were granted to the roads just as prices of farm products were falling precipitately.

"Freight rates are relatively stable; prices for farm products have been anything but stable in the last six years. It is one thing to pay 15 cents freight when the product is worth a dollar, and quite another to pay the same freight when the product will bring only 81 cents, the burden being greater the lower prices go.

"It is now generally agreed that our inland waterways should be used to supplement other transportation facilities in the movement of our bulky products. Transportation has always been a measure in the progress of civilization. No country has progressed that has not met its transportation needs. The interior of China today, from an economic standpoint, is further from the coast cities of that land than New York is from the coast of China. Efficient and economical transportation is the corner-stone

NEW PERIL TO FRANCE IN SUDDEN RISE OF FRANC

Government Now Trying to Check Appreciation of Currency — Exports Already Falling Off.

FRENCHMEN BLAME SPECULATION ABROAD

Manufacturers and Whole-salers Anticipate Sudden Business Failures as Result of Change.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Nov. 22.—The French Government is endeavoring to prevent a further rise in the value of the franc.

When the franc in July had dropped to its lowest level, around 50 to the dollar, strenuous efforts were made to bolster it and prevent further depreciations. When Saturday it reached 26.37 to the dollar, the highest point since mid-July, the authorities began endeavors to stop its upward trend.

Rumors that the Government would stabilize it at 30 caused it to drop to 29.30, and when this was denied it reacted at the close of the Bourse to 28.

The franc today opened at 27.43 to the dollar as against Saturday's close. Business and financial circles expect the franc to slump sharply when the speculative movement now on turns to profit-taking. But it is thought that meantime many importers probably will buy in dollars and pounds at the present low rate of exchange. Thus for a day or two they may help the Government to halt the rise in exchange.

The point where economic difficulties begin has been reached, and should the franc continue to improve at the same rate as in the last two weeks manufacturers and wholesalers see sudden failures in business ahead. Unemployment already has made its appearance and exports are falling off.

Poincare's Warning.
Premier Poincare realizes the ac-tiousness of the situation and in a speech yesterday he pleaded for the retention of the National Union Ministry.

"The peril of yesterday," he declared, "has been averted, but has not yet disappeared."

He added that the future of the nation was at stake. Former Premier Herriot, in an address yesterday, likewise laid stress on the soriousness of the situation.

With the rise in the franc and the consequent fall in the dollar so far as the purchase of francs is concerned, Americans are no more popular than they were when the dollar would buy 50 francs in mid-July. Frenchmen blame foreign speculation for the situation. They believe speculating has caused the rise in the franc and the maintenance of the high cost of living, and they do not fail to express their opinion to this effect whenever there is opportunity.

Long and Arduous Task.

Premier Poincare, in a speech at Tarbes, warned France that the task of restoring the nation's finances would be long and arduous.

"Those who are pressing us to achieve it by premature measures not only sacrifice lightly the hope of obtaining a stable betterment of our currency, but also do not reflect on the deception which, sooner or later, fragmentary decisions and hastened solutions inevitably would entail."

"It is not a short truce that can hinder France from falling into the abyss where she already has barely escaped falling."

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 22.—

With Republican control of the Senate pending on the special election in this State next Monday, Arthur R. Gould, Republican nominee, today faced charges of exceeding legal expenses in the rea $100,000 bribe several years ago to the Premier of New Brunswick.

In addition, there was a demand before Senator Reed of Missouri for a Federal inquiry into the primary situation here.

Gould said the bribe story was old and asserted the money had been paid by former business asso-

PRINTERS CELEBRATE FOUNDED OF UNION

Minutes of First Meeting of No. 8, 70 Years Ago, Read at Hotel Chase Banquet.

The seventieth anniversary of the founding of St. Louis Typographical Union No. 8 was celebrated yesterday afternoon at a banquet in the palm room of Hotel Chase, attended by 600 printers, members of their families and friends.

Minutes of the original meeting, July 26, 1856, were read by the toastmaster, William J. Gibbons, president of No. 8. They began: "This day a meeting of the printers of St. Louis was held for the purpose of forming a society to be called the St. Louis Typographical Union." The seven charter members "solemnly pledged ourselves to do all in our power towards the advancement of our great and noble undertaking."

Only five rules were considered necessary in the beginning. One rule pledged the members to abide by the decisions of their directors and counsellors, another required secrecy and absence of self-aggrandizement, a third prohibited dissolution of the local as long as its membership did not fall below seven.

Pledge Personal Decorum. Another rule was: "We promise not to attempt to enter any of the meetings of this union when in a condition which renders us unable to conform strictly to the rules of decorum."

The only other rule was: "We faithfully promise to propose no person for membership in this union who is not a practical typographer, and in good standing."

Speakers at the banquet were Mayor Miller, former Mayor Kiel, "Major" Phillip Coghlan, member of the International Typographical Union for 75 years; Charles Herstein, former president of Local No. 8 and former first vice president of the international union; John W. Hays, secretary-treasurer of the international union; James M. Lynch, former president of the international union, and M. J. Lowenstein, publishers' representative.

Consider Five-Day Week. Lynch told the assembled printers that their present wage scale and working conditions had been won by sticking together and working for the common good, and said there must be no let up. Wages are not going to be reduced and hours are not going to be increased, he continued, the tendency being rather toward higher wages and shorter hours. The New York Typographical Union is now considering the theory of a five-day working week.

Hertenstein told of the organization of the international union with only $45 in its treasury, of which $5 was a counterfeit bill from West Virginia, members. Today the union has $5,000,000 and pays sick and death benefits, educates apprentices and otherwise looks after the welfare of printers. Former Mayor Kiel, who has attracted issues between St. Louis printers and publishers, congratulated the union on its anniversary. Mayor Miller, in extending congratulations, said he was largely responsible for unionization of a Jefferson City printing plant in which he is a large stockholder. He explained how part of each street car fare is paid back to the city in taxes, but another speaker, Lowenstein, assured him printers ride, not in street cars, but in Packards.

Greatest applause of the meeting was reserved for the white-haired Coghlan—called "The Major" because of Civil War service—who will be 94 years old next Jan. 11. He works daily in the Post-Dispatch composing room, where he has been employed continuously for 42 years, with a 72-year-old son working on the same floor. At the meeting ended, he held an impromptu reception, shaking hands with the men and women present.

DENIES NAVY OFFICER $1352 WHILE WIFE GOES VISITING

McCall Rules Against Commander Glennon Whose Mate Is Gen. Lejeune's Daughter.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—While Commander J. B. Glennon, U. S. N., was at sea, his wife, a daughter of Major-General John A. Lejeune, commandant of the Marine Corps, visited her parents for several months in the marine barracks here. Now Commander Glennon has decided that since Gen. Lejeune is living in public quarters his son-in-law is not entitled to receive rental allowance for the period his wife and children visited her father.

McCall said the ruling involved no question of a visit, but merely the fact that the dependents of Glennon, I. e., his wife, took up permanent residence in public quarters while he was at sea. McCall has disallowed a claim of $1216.27 and a second item of $46.68 paid to Glennon by the naval supply corps and is trying to recover the money.

Billion Dollars Lost Annually in Fraudulent Stock Schemes; St. Louis Forfeits $10,000,000

How Investor Can Combine Safety and Good Interest Return on His Investments Explained by Bank President.

A billion dollars a year lost in highly speculative and fraudulent stock promotion schemes and swindles! That is the staggering estimate made by postoffice authorities and officials of Better Business Bureaus over the country, who make it their duty to investigate various devices through which thousands of gullible persons in a moment lose their savings of a lifetime.

Although it is impossible to state the exact amount of this giant loss borne by St. Louisans, it is conservatively estimated at from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 annually. This in spite of the fact that St. Louis has an exceptionally clean record on promotion schemes due to the watchful eyes of the Better Business Bureau and conservative investment bankers.

Should Listen to Bankers. "Thousands of columns of newspaper space are devoted annually to the stories of those who have trusted their little fortunes to the swindler, and yet the losses go on," said John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce, in commenting on the situation. "Had the investor, instead of listening to the siren song of the stranger, gone to his investment banker with an idea of placing his money in good bonds, what a different situation there would be."

Like the Federal Commerce Trust Company is organized to remain in business. It offers a continuity of service throughout many years to come. "It is to be hoped that St. Louisans, and the rest of the nation, will continue to turn more and more to the sounder type of investment."

BANKING IN THE MIDDLE AGES

When the first banking institution, the Bank of Venice, was organized in the year 1157, making a deposit was a laborious procedure. A bullion, jewel and other valuables were carried to the bank and deposited in strong boxes. Checks were unknown. The only way to draw against an account was to go to the bank and carry the deposit away.

From this primitive bank of the Middle Ages has gradually evolved the modern bank, now a factor in everyday life and over. Depositing money and drawing checks has become such a commonplace matter that few persons stop to think of the elaborate system that makes this convenience possible.

EDUCATION VALUABLE ASSET

Only one child in 150,000 has been able in America, without education, to become a notable factor in the progress of his state, while children with common school education have, in proportion to numbers, accomplished this four times as often. Those with high school education 87 times as often, and those with college training 800 times as often.

NOT SO VERY LONG AGO When Oklahoma was admitted to the Union

IT WAS in November, 1907, that by presidential proclamation Oklahoma and the Indian Territory, a rich domain, were added to the United States as the 46th State.

Many fathers who recall this date of 19 years ago, now have children ranging into the age when they must attend a college or university. What a fine thing it would have been had these parents started building a savings account for their sons or daughters to meet this educational need!

SKILLFUL WEAVER FOUNDED FAMOUS FUGGER FORTUNES

Industry and Saving at Bottom of Success of German Family

Away back in 1350, near the famous German city of Augsburg, in an humble cottage, a weaver plied his trade. Often the midnight hour, when others were fast asleep, found him beside his loom in the light of a sputtering candle carrying on his work.

So skillfully and industriously did this artisan, Johann Fugger, perform his self-imposed task, that his wares began to earn a wide reputation. Patrons sought him out at his home to buy his goods. Soon his trade prospered to such an extent that his son, also named Johann, was sent to Augsburg to open a little store in conjunction with the weaving business.

Thus, through application and industry, was laid the basis of the famous Fugger fortunes that through many years played an important part in the history of the German Empire.

Expansion of Trade

Succeeding generations after Johann Fugger for 200 years continued to expand their trade into many lines, with the same keen foresight and skill as their ancestors, adding to the family fortune until it had reached an enormous value. It was this great wealth that enabled the Fuggers to lend much-needed funds to Emperor Maximilian I and in return obtain lordships, rich lands and other valuable privileges. The emperor was helped Maximilian, never forgot the humble beginnings of his family and was known as the emperor who paid the customary charges. These structures still stand and are pointed out to the traveler.

The Fugger fortune again figured in royal history in 1519, when Jacob's fiefs are said to have contributed largely to the election of Charles V to the imperial throne. It is related that the emperor was given a great thrill during the Diet of Augsburg in 1530, when as a guest of Anton Fugger, he watched his host calmly light a cinnamon fire with an imperial bond that was due him. This incident is the subject of a picture painted by Carl Thiem and displayed in the National Gallery at Berlin.

Summit of Their Wealth

While the Fuggers attained the summit of their wealth and influence in about 1550, various branches of the family since that time have continued to reflect great credit to their native land in commerce, art, literature and religion. In the case of the Fuggers, as in all other romantic fortunes of history, the student may learn many valuable lessons. Johann Fugger was a "plunger"—he kept at his work and he saved his money. Those who followed him were made of the same material. They kept adding to their fortunes but were content to provide safeguards for those who followed them.

Today, as in Johann Fugger's time, the young man must be industrious and save, if he is to forge ahead. Once an estate is built it must be safeguarded. The National Bank of Commerce takes a keen delight in seeing young men get ahead. It is ready to help them build fortunes. Once they are built, it is ready to help them through the Trust Department how to safeguard the estate for posterity.

Here's Another Puzzle in Figures for You to Try on Your Friends

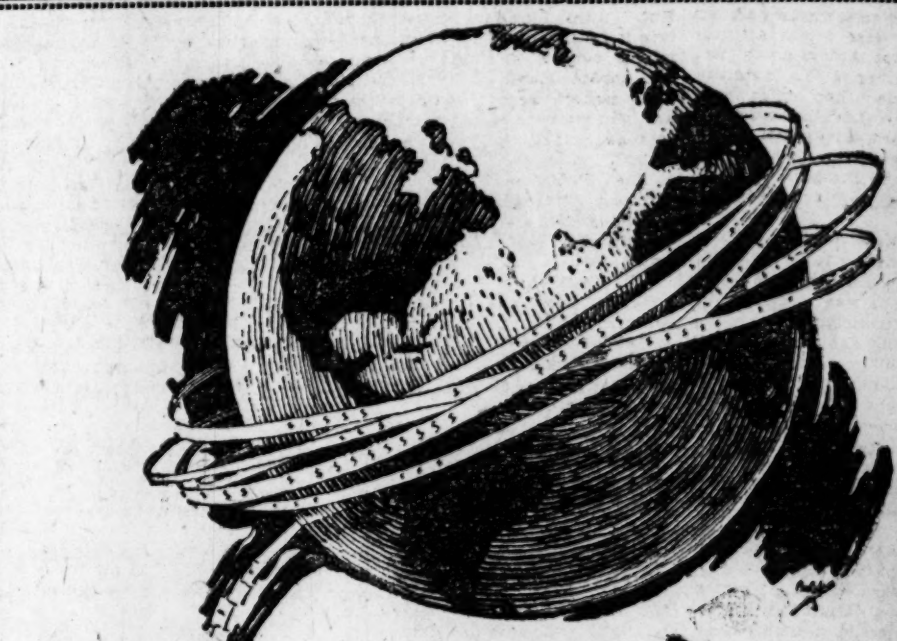

Readers of this page evinced much interest in the figure puzzle published a few days ago. That another is being offered. Work it out in your own mind. Tell your friend you can predict in advance what the total will be for three rows of figures, containing three digits each, provided he writes the first three figures, you the next row, he the third and you the last. Suppose he puts down 326. You glance at his figures and blandly announce the total will be 1988. Beneath his offering you place 672. Now it's his turn again and he joins down 169. You promptly set down 820 and add up. The result is 1998, as you predicted.

Very simple when you know how it is done. You merely place beneath each figure of your friend a number that will make the two total 9 up and down. The total comes out the same each time and is just as satisfying as a certain sum of money placed in a savings account at 3 per cent interest.

LIFE OF DOLLAR BILL IS TOO SHORT TO SUIT GOVERNMENT

Because the life of the dollar bill is growing shorter and shorter, the Treasury Department has set in motion a thorough investigation for making it more durable. At present the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is turning out 1200 tons of paper money a year, equivalent to about $4,128,654,000, and is constantly falling behind. With the present quality of paper money, it is predicted the Government will have to enlarge its already large plant. The automobile is said to have increased the use of currency about four-fold. Oil and gas purchases have meant the use of a vast array of dollar bills and their constant use with oil and grease soon sends them back to the Treasury for retirement.

To give some idea of what the production of four billion dollars means it is estimated that if a person started out, on an eight-hour schedule to count a billion dollars, it would take him more than 100 years. Treasury officials say use of the national currency is now three times greater than it was in 1910 and six times more than in 1900. Formerly paper money was good for 16 to 24 months of commercial wear, but about a year ago when the quality of the paper seemed at its lowest, its life was only seven months. Now, scientific study has increased the

LOST! 125,000 Miles of Dollar Bills

EVERY year about one billion dollars are lost in investments in highly speculative and fraudulent stock promotion schemes and swindles. If this immense fortune were converted into dollar bills there would be nearly 125,000 miles of them, or enough to reach around the world five times.

Suppose the investors had bought good bonds instead

He instructed the servant, and the Phantom followed the silent and soft-footed man to the bath-room. He splashed about in the tub, which Helen's words had left aches in his heart. Her frigid attitude and her abrupt going away had merely strengthened his determination to convince her of his immolation to take advantage of the quick and take advantage of the comparative security which he could enjoy until the police discovered that they had arrested the wrong man.

His mind was at work on a plan while he hurried into his clothes, while Jerome had brushed and pressed while he was in the tub. A question that troubled him greatly was how far he could safely take the Bimble into his confidence. The sharp-witted anthropologist, with his keen insight into human nature, would prove a valuable ally, but the Phantom felt a great deal of mystification in his presence. There was something about the man which his senses could not quite grasp.

Likely as not, it was only the scientific temperament, which gave him an appearance of secretiveness and dissimulation, but of this the Phantom could not be sure.

The dinner, which he ate in the doctor's company, was excellent, and Jerome served them in a faultless manner, proving that the anthropologist's devotion to his science had not blunted his taste for physical comforts. The host discoursed learnedly and brilliantly on Luchini's theory in regard to the criminal, and it was not until the servant had withdrawn and they had reached their coffee and cigars that he mentioned the subject on the Phantom's mind.

The dining room, furnished with an approach to elegance that one would scarcely have expected to find on such a shabby street, was lighted by a heavily shaded electric. The lights and shadows playing across Bimble's face as he gesticulated with his head gave him an added touch of mystery and accentuated the general air of in-length of the service to about nine months. It is a curious fact that except for the fanciful figure of "Liberty," no woman's likeness has ever adorned any of our currency or coinage. Presidents and Secretaries of the Treasury ordinarily are pictured on bills. The subject must be dealt before his portrait can thus be used.

ONLY 2 PER CENT OF PEOPLE ARE ABLE TO INVEST WISELY

A student of finance recently declared that probably not more than 2 per cent of adults are equipped, either by training or temperament, with the ability to select their investments wisely. He said most people are inclined to be speculative, and that many have a proclivity to cast their lot with the great speculators of today, the gold-brokers. He warned those uncertain of the investment field to apply to their investment bankers for sound advice.

The host discoursed learnedly and brilliantly on Luchini's theory in regard to the responsibility of the criminal, and it was not until the servant had withdrawn and they had reached their coffee and cigars that he mentioned the subject on the Phantom's mind.

The dining room, furnished with an approach to elegance that would scarcely have been expected to find on such a shabby street, was lighted by a heavily shaded electric. The lights and shadows playing across Bimble's face as he speculated with his head gave him an added touch of mystery and accentuated the general air of inscrutability that hovered about his person. He broached the subject of Gage's death while lighting his cigar.

"Come now, Vanardy, let us be confidential. It was you who murdered Gage. Why deny it?"

Bimble regarded him curiously. "The only thing about the crime that interests me is your denial. But I think I understand. In some criminals there is an esthetic sense which revolts against the vulgar and sordid. Having a sordid crime, your esthetic sense reasserts itself, and you want to forget the ugly affair as quickly as possible. Am I right?"

The Phantom laughed. "You clothe the thing in such attractive phrasing that I almost wish I could plead guilty. But I didn't kill Gage, and there all there is to it."

"You still insist that Pinto did?"

"Until two or three hours ago I was firmly convinced of it."

"Ah! Now we are getting down to facts. Until two or three hours ago you were certain Pinto was the murderer. Why?"

"Because at the time I felt sure that no one else could have committed the crime. The mysterious circumstances could be explained in no other way than on the assumption that Pinto was the perpetrator."

"Exactly. Your logic was not at all bad. But I infer that within the last three hours you have changed your mind."

"Not quite. I have merely modified my opinion. I am no longer positively certain that Pinto committed the murder."

"Why?" A shrewd grin twisted the anthropologist's lips. "What has caused you to modify your view—the tunnel?"

"Yes, the tunnel. The existence of the tunnel makes it possible for someone other than Pinto to have committed the murder. It suggests another hypothesis. In the light of which all the circumstances are explainable. Without the tunnel I should be morally certain of Pinto's guilt; with it in existence I am no longer sure."

"Bravo, my friend! You are doing very well for an amateur detective. Your idea is that the murderer entered Gage's bedchamber by way of the tunnel and took his departure the same way. Do you know," with a broad grin, "that I thoroughly agree with you? The only point of difference between us is in the identity of the human mole."

"The Phantom's face darkened a trifle. 'I advanced the idea only as a hypothesis,' he declared a little testily, 'and as yet I am not at all sure that it has any value. For instance, in order to reach Gage's bedchamber by way of the tunnel, the murderer had to go through your house and get down in the cellar. Which could easily be done. Both Jerome and myself are sound sleepers and the house has no burglar protection.'

"But that isn't all. After traversing the tunnel, the murderer had to enter the bedroom. In order to do so, he had to work the mechanism which controls the revolving window frame. From the inside of the chamber it is worked by the nail. Can it be manipulated from the outside as well?"

"Dear me!" exclaimed the doctor, almost jumping out of the chair. "I never thought of that."

The Phantom eyed him keenly, though he seemed wholly absorbed in contemplation of the said shaker. The exclamation, he thought, had not sounded quite natural.

"You invented the contraption," he pointed out. "Surely you ought to know whether the mechanism can be worked by a man approaching the room by way of the tunnel."

"So I thought. An inventor ought to know the children of his brain." He gave a forced chuckle, as if fencing for time in which to frame an answer. "The fact of the matter is that the contrivance was intended to be an emergency exit and nothing else. The spring by which the mechanism is operated can't be reached by a man approaching the room by way of the tunnel. But that," with a grin which wrinkled his whole face, "does not exclude the possibility of a man getting through by the use of force. For instance, the frame could be budged by prying."

"Perhaps. As matters stand, the whole question hinges on whether the room can be entered from the tunnel. If it can't, then it is certain that Pinto committed the murder. If it can, there is a possibility that someone else did it, though the preponderance of evidence still points in Pinto's direction. For it is extremely unlikely that the mur-derer was aware of the existence of the tunnel. However."

He checked himself, deciding to let the thought remain unspoken.

The anthropologist, having recovered from his temporary embarrassment, gave a hoarse laugh. "You are incorrigible, my friend. You are willing to admit almost any theory but the plain and obvious one, which is that the Gray Phantom committed the murder. Reminds me of Pinel's excellent treatise on the psychology of the criminal. But you must be tired. Please excuse me while I make a telephone call."

The Phantom regarded him narrowly as he trundled from the room and closed the door behind him. The doctor intrigued and baffled him. He was almost certain that Bimble had been guilty of equivocation in regard to the tunnel and the revolving frame. On the other hand, this and other peculiarities might be due to an ardent temperament. His stubborn insistence on the Phantom's guilt could be the result of mental laziness and a disinclination to exert himself over a case which did not interest him. Yet, after making all due allowances, the Phantom could not feel wholly at ease.

The doctor, smiling placidly and without a sign of guile in his face, interrupted his reflections.

"I've just had my friend, Inspector Vadhane, on the wire," he announced. "It has been decided to let the prisoner sleep off the effects of his debauch."

"He will not be questioned until along toward morning. So, my friend, you can sleep in peace. Shall I show you to your room?"

The Phantom, blinking his eyes drowsily, expressed a desire to retire at once. Dr. Bimble conducted him to a pleasant bedroom with two large windows facing the street, and then everything was in order, and wished his guest a hearty good-night. Even before he was out of the room the Phantom had started to remove his clothes.

Yet, no sooner had the door closed than he hurried back into the garments. Though only a few moments ago he had showed signs of great drowsiness, he was now fully awake, and his springy motions and the twinkle in his eyes hinted that sleep was farthest from his mind.

NINE OUT OF TEN KILL THEMSELVES

Doctors say universal habits of intestinal uncleanness cause disease

By refusal to correct civilization's effect on the bowel-habits of the race, nine out of ten people deliberately shorten their lives, say scientists today.

Primitive man evacuated his bowels every six hours—and consequently knew nothing of the intestinal poisoning to which modern human beings are subject through retention of decaying fecal matter in the lower bowel.

In an astounding booklet, "Civilization's Greatest Menace," offered in support of fifty world-leading doctors, shows that auto-intoxication is a cause of practically every known ill, from dizziness to cancer.

Hunt's Internal Bath ends auto-intoxication and constipation by keeping the lower bowel washed clean. Without obligation, ask to see our complete display of Hunt's Internal Baths. A copy of the booklet may be had for the asking.

The proposition was an amendment to the Constitution enabling the Legislature to enact laws authorizing cities to establish police pension funds. The committee will continue to function, with such an act of the Legislature as its object. Wight in retiring issued a statement of thanks to fellow workers, press and voters.

1972 SUITS FOR UNPAID PERSONAL TAXES DOCKETED

Cases to Be Called at February Term and Petitions Placed in Hands of Sheriff for Service.

25 CORPORATIONS AMONG DEFENDANTS

Some Claims Are for Levies Due in 1921, Others Embrace That Year Up to 1924.

Back-tax suits totaling 1972 claims on unpaid personal property taxes were docketed in the Circuit Court today to be called at the February term. The suits were filed by Collector Koeln and are for State, city and public school taxes levied.

Most of the claims are for taxes due in 1921, but some also are for unpaid taxes embracing that year and also the years of 1922, 1923 and 1924.

Of the suits just filed, all except 25 are directed against individuals, the 25 being against corporations. The suits are listed alphabetically and have been placed in the hands of the Sheriff for service. Several defendants named are dead, while others have moved away. It will be the duty of the Sheriff's office to serve as many of the defendants as can be found, and if they do not contest judgment by default automatically goes against them.

Some of the persons sued, with the amount of judgment sought in each case, follow:

"The most Attractive Sandwiches I have ever served!"

THAT is the opinion of thousands of women who have served Wonder Bread at teas, luncheons—or to their own families.

They have found that this long "all-purpose" shape not only makes daintier sandwiches—but gives six or eight more slices to the loaf, as well.

They have found that in every way Wonder Bread meets modern needs better. It fits the toaster better—and its firm, close grain makes a more even, golden-brown toast.

It slices smoothly—and spreads without crumbling. It has the appetizing flavor that comes from using the same ingredients you use in your own kitchen. Plenty of milk—specially tested flour—the finest shortening, sugar and salt that can be bought.

Try Wonder Bread today. See for yourself why the most particular women everywhere are now serving this satisfying loaf.

UNBEATEN BROWN ELEVEN OPPOSES GATE THURSDAY

on of Surprises Closes This Week With Opportunity for Further Upsets.

Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The college football season has seen many surprises this week with opportunity for further upsets. Dartmouth, national champion last year, has its season with four defeats. Harvard-Yale-Princeton all have been wrecked and Harvard and Yale have had the most satisfactory results in their foot- victory.

Unbeaten and untied leaders of the candidates for Eastern supremacy, Brown University, having their first season in the college circuit, the Killarneys are out with the Geraghtys for the season's upsets, for it is New Hampshire 40 to 12 in the penultimate contest Saturday. Colgate rested, Pennsylvania with a record that shows only an intercollegiate rival, as against a Cornell eleven, has played in-and-out-football season, Pittsburgh's battling meets an old rival in Penn. Syracuse, brilliant and made in turn, can end the season victory against Columbia. West Virginia and Washington and Yale play another of their team battles in the only other out- going match of the holiday.

He took the final game of the Big Three series from Harvard, 7, as a balm for the bruises of Army, Maryland and Boston left on the Bulldogs. Harvard today had no need for a disastrous season of five- ts. Both Army and Navy have ble beating final preparatory before the service classics, the taking Urinus into camp, to 15, while the midwest were wing Loyola of Baltimore, 23. 3. # Big Ten's Best Point Getter

HERB JOESTING.

Joesting Sets Fullback Record
Gains 962 Yards in Season All by Plunging—Grange's Mark 1017.

By the Associated Press. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 22.—Herb Joesting, Minnesota's giant fullback, ended the 1926 season yesterday just 55 yards short of tying the all-time record of yards gained by a back in a single season, and set a new mark for fullbacks to drive for.

By gaining 116 yards against Michigan, Joesting brought his total of the season to 962. The record set by Red Grange of Illinois is 1017 yards.

Joesting's mark is the more spectacular because, while Grange made his by sweeping and runs, the Gopher back crashed through the line for every yard he made. As far as can be established, this is a record performance for a fullback.

Fighting through the line, never once stepping into a clear field except as far as he made his way clear of all tacklers, Joesting earned his yardage.

The figures do not include a to-

Francis Field to Be Cleared for Marine Contest

Higgins Plans Two Days of Intensive Training for Bear Eleven.

Snow-plows will be used to clear off Francis Field, Dr. Bill Edmonds announced this morning in outlining preparations for the visit of the Quinceco Marine eleven here for a Thanksgiving day game with Washington University.

Coch Bob Higgins said he planned to put his squad through two days of intensive work. Should the snow be sufficiently removed by practice time, the Bear regulars will practice outdoors.

In Washington, D. C., Saturday, the Marines, playing 10 enlisted men and one officer, defeated Fort Benning in the annual enlisted men's championship for the President's cup. The victory was the ninth of the season, others coming over the University of New Hampshire, King College, Lehigh, Catholic U., Providence College, Canisius, Temple U. and the University of Detroit.

Bailey Is a Real Star.

In the center of the heavy Marine line, the Bears will meet a real star in Captain Bailey, formerly of the University of Maryland. He is playing his fourth year with the Quinceco eleven. In the line with Bailey are two other veterans from Maryland, Hough, 185-pound guard and Burger, 200-pound tackle.

The Marines have a large number of forward passers, as many as six men being used behind the line for this purpose. A similar number may be called in for punting. Levy, halfback, is expected to shoulder the greater part of the punting burden.

"Doc" Lambert, veteran Ohio State official, has been selected to referee the game. Lambert, president of the Ohio Football Officials' Association, has refereed Ohio State football contests for 20 years.

BARRACKS BOXERS TO COMPETE IN AMATEUR TOURNEY TOMORROW

Jefferson Barracks athletic authorities are planning to send representatives into Western A. A. U. competition, according to information received yesterday by officials of the South Broadway A. C., following receipt of two U. S. Army letters for tomorrow night's boxing tourney at the South Side arena.

Edward Jermiah, a featherweight, and George Pilkington, lightweight, are the doughboys slated to draw for pairings.

Receipt of the Barracks entries increased the list of preliminary candidates to 32. Four other contestants are slated to compete in flyweight and featherweight bouts of the interclub variety, billed as headliners. Cliff Doerter and Ray Lang will clash in the flyweight special, while the featherweight attraction will bring together Frankie Mezer and Joe Stein.

The featherweight and lightweight divisions have drawn the strongest representation in the field of prelim candidates, and boxing having filed entries in each of these weight groups. Four flyweight bidders and five welterweights are also scheduled to draw for pairings in the open events.

STANFORD CAPTURES COAST GRID HONORS

By the Associated Press. SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 22.—A new monarch sat on the throne of Pacific Coast football today. Stanford won the laurel Saturday amid the colorful setting of Memorial Stadium at Berkeley, home of the Golden Bears of California, who succumbed to the Cardinal avalanche, 41 to 6. Eighty thousand saw the game.

The victory gave the Cardinals a record for the season of four games won and no defeats, and it likewise earned a disastrous season for California, which lost all of its five conference games.

Southern California, which plays Notre Dame in post-season game Dec. 4, finished with four games won and one lost, tied with Oregon Aggies and Washington State College.

Others finished in this order: University of Washington, University of Oregon, Idaho, Montana and California.

Western Again Closes Season Without Defeat

Alton Cadets Win Second Prep Football Conference Title; Scored on Once.

For the second consecutive time Western Military Academy is football champion of the St. Louis Preparatory League. The Alton cadets, repeating their performance of 1925, won all of their five conference games and their goal line was crossed only once, by Country Day. The Illinois players scored 85 points to their opponents' 6.

McBride, fighting hard for the title, finished second, suffering only one defeat, winning three times and tying once. Christian Brothers' High proved the biggest surprise of the year. Last year one of the cellarites, the Brothers showed great improvement under the direction of Coach Slav Geraghty and his assistant, Clarence Esler. Both men are former St. Louis University stars.

St. Louis University High proved somewhat of a disappointment. A new coaching staff found it hard getting started and the material lacked weight. The same was true of Country Day, which finished fourth. Chamaine, with a limited supply of material from which to draw, ended up last without winning a victory.

The standings: Western A. A. U. 1000, Country Day 600, Chamaine 400, St. John 300, St. John defeated St. Trinity, 42 to 14, and Holy Cross beat Redemptorist, 21 to 7, last night in the opening games of the Junior Lutheran Basketball League at Emmaus Hall. Pink of St. John scored 22 points.

Amateur Basketball

The Walther League opened its season yesterday at Battery A gymnasium with a three-game schedule. St. Trinity defeated St. Peter's, 45 to 7; Christ Church of St. Louis defeated Christ Church of Webster Groves, 14 to 12, and Concordia of Maplewood beat Emmaus, 20 to 12.

The P. M. A. C. made up of motorbus employees, has organized a quintet and wants to book games in and out of town on opponents' courts, with return games on the club's floor. N. Draper, 6510 Olea avenue.

St. Louis U. Will Play Undeclared Team Thursday

South Dakota State, Winner in Conference, Beat Detroit Last Week.

Another team of the University of Oklahoma class will play St. Louis University here Thursday in the closing game of the schedule when South Dakota State, champion of the North Central Conference, makes the trip here. The Billikens may go into the contest without the services of Quarterback Eddie Jordan, whose weak knee took a bad hammering in the defeat at Norman.

South Dakota is undefeated in its conference this year and, among others, has beaten Creighton and North Dakota. North Dakota defeated Marquette 9 to 6 last week, and Marquette trimmed St. Louis early in the season 28 to 0. A loss roundabout basis of comparison shows that Detroit beat the Billikens 28 to 7, and South Dakota State defeated Detroit last week at Detroit 5 to 0.

Little or no practice, except for indoor work, will be held at St. Louis U. Scouts have reported that Halfback Kelly will be the man to stop and a defense against his smashes will be doped out.

Alumni who have taken part in athletics will gather tonight at the S. L. frat house, 3517 Pine street, and discuss plans for a broader organization.

Yale Substitute's Breach Of Rule Defeated Harvard

Punt by Crimson Captain, Putting Ball Far Into Old Eli Territory, Called Back and Next Kick Is Blocked.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The possibility of a new rule on the football books next season developed today from an incident that figured in Yale's defeat of Harvard Saturday.

Yale scored a touchdown after a long punt by Capt. Coady drove the ball from deep Harvard territory to apparent safety far past midfield. The ball was called back when it was discovered that a Yale substitute had trotted on the field in the middle of the play. When Coady kicked again, the Yale line smashed through, blocked the kick and Sturman recovered the ball over Harvard's goal for a touchdown.

Had it not been for this touchdown, Harvard would have won. Critics favoring a change in the rules say that Harvard, in effect, was penalized a touchdown because a substitute caused 12 Yale men to be on the field during the play. Yale suffered no penalty and received two chances to block one kick. Some critics suggested the rules be changed to allow the original kick to count as a play, disregarding the illegal substitution.

Barracks Squad Wins

Jefferson Barracks yesterday defeated the Schaum Blues, an independent gridiron eleven, at the Barracks, 3 to 0. Capt. Webster scored the only points of the game with a dropkick from the 40-yard line.

Funeral of Leo Heyman

The funeral of Leo Heyman, sports promoter, who died last Wednesday, was held yesterday under Masonic auspices. Burial was in Mt. Sinai Cemetery. Rabbi Harrison delivered the funeral eulogy.

By the Associated Press.

All other officers and members of the Executive Committee were re-elected. They include S. G. Danforth, St. Joseph, Mo., third vice president; Wooster Lambert, St. Louis, treasurer. The Executive Committee for next year includes J. C. Ameling, St. Louis, and Chas. Cushing, Peoria, Ill.

In yesterday's bowling, B. Lyons of Mankato, Minn., rolled into the lead in the singles with a 636 score, topping the totals turned in by nearly 100 bowlers. Lyons' scores were 245, 183 and 202.

W. Goodside and B. Tolkakson, Sioux City team, went into first place in the doubles with a total of 1172 mapsles.

Ritola Victor In 6-Mile Run

Philip Osis, Pima Indian From Haskell Institute, Second in New York Race.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Willie Ritola, Finnish-American distance running star, raced away with the National A. A. U. senior cross-country championship for the fifth time over the six-mile Van Cortlandt Park course yesterday and led the Finnish-American team to its fifth national senior title at the same time. Ritola's time, 30 minutes 23.5 seconds, failed by more than a minute to equal the course record.

Trailing the Finnish distance king by almost a minute was Philip Osis, a full-blooded Pima Indian from Haskell Institute, Kansas. Osis ran a strong race but never endangered the lead of Ritola, who opened a 30-second gap on the field during the first turn of the course. The Western Indian had been considered as a strong contender by virtue of victories in the national junior and senior six-mile run at Philadelphia recently in which he smashed both records for the events.

The Indian team finished sixth among the seven teams that brought 52 runners to the scratch. The St. Bonaventure College team, holder of the national junior team title, furnished the Finns with strong competition for the group prize, rolling up 66 points to 58 for Ritola's men. Gus Moore, a former high school star, finished only 30 yards behind Osis in third place with Ove Anderson, intercollegiate champion of Finland running unopposed, in fourth position.

The team scores: Finnish-American 58, St. Bonaventure 66, Dorchester Club 89, Shanahan C. C. 91, New York A. C. 100, Haskell Indians 109, Millrose A. A., New York, 125.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Dope Is Shocked.

THE Old Dope, as relates to college football, supplied another surprise Saturday. It behaved!

The big games throughout the country ran strictly to form, as was shown by the results of 22 games of major consequence "doped" by the writer last Saturday.

Only teams in the public eye were chosen and no "cripples" were selected to pad out the winning percentage. Harvard-Yale, Michigan-Yale, Missouri-Kansas, Stanford-California, Ames-Kansas Aggies and games of this type were included.

Of the 22 contests the "form" came through as predicted in all except three contests, each of which was lost by a hairline. The Kansas Aggies lost by one point. Holy Cross lost by field goal and Maryland was defeated by the same scant margin.

The writer is pinning no roses on himself because, for the most part, football form is distinguished for its ground and lousy tumbling, rather than for good behavior. When the "form" goes through it really is an upset.

One for the Book.

NOW it appears that Harvard lost to Yale because a twelfth Yale player was on the field at one stage of Saturday's contest. Harvard had just punted from a point close to its own goal, booting 60 yards, to put the ball in Yale territory. A Yale sub was on the field at the time and so under the rules, the play was brought back. Harvard tried to boot again and this time Sturhahn blocked the kick and fell on the ball for a touchdown!

Had the first kick been allowed to stand, Yale would have lost the game 7 to 6!

Rules like this open endless possibilities for trouble-making and even conniving. In a way, it is comparable to the ring rule which permits the disqualifying of a fighter, if his second steps into the ring during the battling.

It Really Happened.

EXTRA men on the football field while the play is in progress do not often figure in football annals. Perhaps the most notable case occurred several years ago when Gil Dobie was coaching the Navy.

The Great Lakes team of Chicago was the Navy's opponent. The score was very close. In a struggle at the Great Lakes goal line Navy pressed home a thrust that meant a touchdown and victory when the ball was fumbled!

A Great Lakes player seized the ball and sped down the field. He passed the secondary line and the safety man, and, with a clear field, was gaining on his pursuers, when—

Off the Navy bench hopped a substitute and dashed on the field—the twelfth midshipman on the gridiron. He slammed into the Great Lakes man like a pile-driver and bore him to the ground.

But the official awarded the Great Lakes team a touchdown and victory!

There were those who hinted that the crafty Dobie sent the

Lewis Ready to Forfeit $5000

Will Not Wrestle in Los Angeles "Under Existing Conditions," Manager Says.

By the Associated Press.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 22.—Billy Sandow, manager of Ed (Strangler) Lewis, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling title, issued the following statement tonight regarding the meeting of the California Boxing Commission today to declare forfeited the $5000 posted by Lewis to bind the match with Joe Stecher:

"I refuse to allow Lewis to go through with his match with Stecher in California under present conditions there. If the California Commission will transfer the $5000 forfeit to any other State in the Union I will agree to the match."

Sandow refused to explain what he meant by "present existing conditions there."

Nothing Wrong With It.

FOUR games on Yale's schedule brought in receipts totaling $800,000. That means that Yale's financial season will be worth to it about half a million dollars, perhaps more.

Other big football plants about the country yield returns in proportion. Illinois University's $2,000,000 stadium is one of the many others.

Such returns mean that the big "bowl" will pay themselves out in from four to six years and that thereafter the enormous income will accrue to the universities or their athletic associations.

Big Business Is Good Business.

CRITICS of football as a "Big Business" will do their usual shudder and make the usual sour faces. The bugbear "Commercialization" will get its usual big talk.

But, in reality, the football earnings, in many instances, will be manna from heaven in that they supply the means for promoting all sorts of non-paying recreational activity and physical education.

Endowments seldom go beyond a gymnasium, when it comes to requests for training the physical side of students. Training the mind has monopolized the funds, for the most part, in the past.

Today sports are going the intellectual side of development one better—they are self-sustaining, and thanks to college football!

As long as the returns from football are devoted to keeping the college undereducated, healthy and happy, universities can afford to ignore the "Commercialization" charge.

Our Thanksgiving Day Games.

ST. LOUIS will have an abundance of football next Thursday. Those colorful service champions, the Quantico Marines, with their bank and all the atmosphere that attends service eleven wherever they go, will oppose Washington; South Dakota State will face St. Louis University; and the High School championship campaign will reach its climax in a double header.

Considering that St. Louis can hardly support one game with an adequate crowd, the congestion indicate that we need a Thanksgiving day football traffic officer.

Formerly the high school teams played their finale in the morning. As many as 12,000 have attended these matutinal contests. High school games today would not suffer if a return to the old plan were adopted.

As for the two universities, the best way out of their difficulty is the one annually suggested ever since the 1922 break in relations—that they play together on Thanksgiving day.

The arrangement suggested would result in one big game, on which local fans could concentrate.

At present the possibility of such a game being arranged seems to be remote for all the fact that Maxey Miller interested himself in reviving it.

The team was returning from Iowa City, where the Purple defeated Iowa, 13 to 6, and tied Michigan for the Western Conference championship.

Good Health Requires Good Elimination of the Body Poisons.

WHEN one hasn't good elimina-

12-YEAR-OLD GIRL ACCUSES FATHER
IN BANK HOLDUP

Cashier at Dadeville, Mo., Killed by Her Uncle, Ward of Juvenile Court Says.

ALSO TELLS OF KILLING OF JOPLIN DETECTIVE

Men Mentioned in Child's Story Have Not Confessed, But Are Held in Kansas.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 22.—The story of a 12-year-old girl, Audrey Eno, ward of the Cherokee County (Kan.) Juvenile Court, may clear the murder of Jesse P. Laster, Joplin Chief of Detectives, last August, and also that of a bank cashier at Dadeville, Mo., a few weeks earlier.
 The story runs the gamut of childish emotion in which she names her father and an uncle as the ones who robbed the Dadeville bank in which the cashier was slain, and her two uncles as the ones who "shot and killed a man who had a star and gun" near Joplin in the latter part of August.
 "Just before school opened," Laster was killed the night of Aug. 24.

Tells of Trip to Dadeville.
 Held in various jails of Kansas are the girl's father, Louis Eno;
 her two uncles, Virgil Eno and Otis Eno, and her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Straley.

The girl's story, told in a written statement to Kansas authorities, declares that her father and uncle, Virgil Eno, went to Dadeville to rob a bank. She says her father drove the motor car and her uncle went into the bank and killed a man. The men who robbed the bank fled empty-handed after the killing.

She then traced the movements of the family to Picher, Ok., and then to Detroit. She said they came to Joplin the latter part of August.

Mother and Aunt Arrested.
 It was while here, her story said, that her two uncles went out one night and "came back and said they killed a man who had a star and a gun." They were frightened, she continued, and wanted to leave at once. She then relates that they went to Amarillo, Tex., while she left the city with her parents.

They returned to Picher three weeks ago, she continued.
 She became a ward of the Juvenile Court when her mother, Gertrude Eno, and aunt, Nora Eno, were sentenced at Picher on charges of passing bad checks.

The slayers of Laster and the Dadeville-banker are in jail if the girl's story is true, and local authorities have much faith, they said, in the veracity of her statement.

No charges have been filed and no confessions have been elicited from any of the suspects. Authorities refused to name the jails where the five are being held.
 Rewards totaling $6900 are offered in the two murders.

SMELL OF SMOKE ALMOST STARTS PANIC AT EMPRESS

Audience Settles Back in Seats When Director Woodward Explains There Is No Fire.

A dangerous situation for a brief six seconds yesterday afternoon threatened to stop the performance at the Empress Theater when a boiler room smudge was fanned into the auditorium. Smelling smoke, a woman in the center of the house, well down in front, nervously twittered "Fire," and started to make her way out. A score or more of excitable were stampeding for the aisles when some of the cooler heads in the house shouted,
 "Sit down!"

General Director O. D. Woodward briefly explained the situation, allaying all apprehension, whereupon John Warner and Leona Powers, on the stage, resumed their interrupted dialogue and the show proceeded to its normal conclusion.

FIND OLD VERSION OF ST. LUKE

By the Associated Press.

BENSHEIM, Germany, Nov. 22.
 —Fragments of a German translation of the New Testament, dating from the fourteenth century, have been discovered in an ancient volume of title deeds in the archives of this city. The torn real estate records were patched with pieces of the old parchment.

Pieced together, these patches were deciphered as parts of the Gospel of St. Luke. It is believed the translation was made at the ancient cloister of Lorsch, formerly one of the wealthiest and most famous cloisters in Germany, found in the seventh century and destroyed by fire in 1671.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
 CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Henry C.
 Brandon, who taught immigrants

erty in the county hospital a few days ago, it is disclosed, was the son of Sir Henry and Lady Brandon of London, an alumnus of Oxford, one time astronomer at the Greenwich Observatory, England, and about five years ago was employed as a civil engineer by a railroad with headquarters in Chicago.
 Friends are seeking trace of a widow and also record of his titled relatives in England. According to his friends, Brandon, who was about 58 years old, had been ill for five years. He died of meningitis.

The Invisible Foundation

"Modern industry is not built upon a foundation of brick and mortar, stone and steel. Its real foundation is an invisible fabric of ideas"— says J. H. Van Deventer in "Industrial Management".

On this invisible foundation the business of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has been built.
 The history of the growth of this Company is a history of the development of ideas.

From the beginning, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has realized the importance of this invisible foundation.

It was among the first organizations to establish a research laboratory adequately equipped for scientific investigation and study—a place where ideas might be encouraged and developed and tested.

In this laboratory men of initiative and scientific training have been brought together to work out the problems of petroleum and make this great natural resource of increasing service to mankind.

In the seclusion of this laboratory, Standard Oil Company (Indiana) ideas have originated which have revolutionized the entire industry.

For example, in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) were developed the first processes for producing gasoline by cracking, which have more than doubled the yield obtained from crude oil by former methods.

These processes were leased to competitors and thus benefited the entire industry and ultimately all the motorists of the country.

Recently a new theory of scientific lubrication has been worked out in the research laboratory of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

This discovery has resulted in the development of a new motor oil which solves many of the lubricating problems that have baffled experts for years. The far reaching importance of this discovery to motorists cannot be overstated.

These are but two examples of revolutionary ideas originated in the laboratory of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) which have been converted into important benefits to every motorist in the Middle West.

Every product of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is the result of careful scientific research backed by experience.

Upon this invisible foundation of ideas and scientific research the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has built the sturdy structure of its vast organization to serve the 30 million people of the Middle West.

NEW IDEAS, NEW FABRICS AND DESIGNS FOR MOTHER AND DAUGHTER, FRESH FROM PARIS

Madame Charlotte, of Premet's, Describes the Latest Modes and Newer Materials Used in the Newest Gowns.

By MME. CHARLOTTE.
PARIS, October.

YOU will smile a little perhaps when I say it seems to me that women's clothes should just as inevitably be created by a woman. Masculine clothes are created by a man. Masculine clothes have been known to go to great lengths but where is to be found the fond lover or husband who has ever permitted the dear one to design his clothes. A woman may be mistress of a man's heart, but never mistress of his wardrobe. Take the mere matter of pockets. Here is a mystery into which women have delved for ages, but which one of us ever knows what she will find therein—much less where they should be placed. A man when he designs women's clothes creates for an imaginary creature—a man's woman is a delightful person, but she is only 50 per cent real. Great masterpieces in the way of women's gowns have undoubtedly been created by men, but these are apt to be robes for an occasion—for the moment when one plays a "beau role." The gown that a woman artist wears "chez elle" or on the stage—that may well be designed by a man, but the gown for a formal dinner, for luncheon at a restaurant, for the street, for the times when one would be remarked for one's chic, never for one's eccentricity, that seems to me essentially a woman's creation. And the friendly little robe so soft, so becoming, which one can slip on the days when one is not "en beauté" the gown that one so loves, which flatters in every line and nuance—who but a woman can create that?

Origin of Sports Clothes.

Every model which enters into the Premet collection from the first to the last, is one which I would wear myself—it is a gown designed with one eye upon the woman who is to wear it and the other upon the place where it is to be worn—it is a picture which makes a perfect ensemble with its frame—the frame of modern life. It was because it was so perfectly attuned to the active life of the present day that the little robe "Garconne" had so widespread a vogue in 1923. It was really with this little frock that the so-called "robe de sport" invaded the sphere of town life—now one even dances in simple robes of this genre.

Its youthfulness is probably the secret of the widespread appeal of this type of frock. This is the day and age of the young woman, there are no middle-aged women, no old women. There is much truth in the saying that a woman is as old as she looks—a man as old as he feels. For no woman ever really feels old. And today she need not look old. Science and athletics will keep her body slim—a clever coiffeur will cut the whitest of white hair to the most alluring youthful contours, and a good couturier will do the rest.

There is today no difference in line and very little difference in color between the frock worn by the smart woman and that of her daughter. The daughter is no longer "tres jeune fille," the mother is no longer "tres dame." They both choose what is becoming and suited to their individual types. Therefore, I create no "older woman's" models and yet the fact that of the Malson Premet includes many of the most distinguished "lames du monde" of Paris.

Gowns Truthful in Conception. Next in importance to the fact that a gown should be youthful in conception, it seems to me that it should be one in which a woman is at ease. Nothing makes a woman so graceful and charming to look upon as to be comfortable in her clothes. You will never find in Premet gown a feature which hampers freedom of movement. I am myself a very active woman and realize to the fullest extent that to play to best advantage her role in the swiftly moving drama of present-day life, a woman must never be unpleasantly conscious of her clothes—it matters not whether she is cast for a matinee part or one of the many other less conspicuous but equally charming roles.

For the present season I am taking much of the fulness out of the silhouette. Generally speaking, the backs of the gowns blouse a bit above the waist and are straight in the skirt, while the front of the gown has considerable fulness in the skirt. This is a silhouette which permits the maximum of freedom of movement and which is at the same time graceful and extremely youthful.

Belts, another youthful feature, appear upon many of the gowns—usually wide belts—which have a tendency to slope upward at the front. The waist-line is definitely higher. In some gowns it is placed even a little above normal.

How Capes Are to Be Worn. Capes as separate garments or attached to coats, jackets and frocks, afford a pleasant variety. There is one very attractive little ensemble which is designed for country wear consisting of an over-bloss of violet jersey with two long rows of violet buttons down the front, a straight, scanty little skirt of violet serge and the simplest of tight-fitting violet serge cape with a straight band bound with violet braid turned back to form the collar and continue the length of the cape on each side of the front. Tweed capes for sports wear are very smart.

Then there is a type of sleeveless jacket which may or may not have a cape attached to the shoulders which is extremely chic. This is developed in costumes of various types suitable for town or country wear. One model of this kind, which is much liked and which is sufficiently formal for any afternoon occasion is made of a heavy black crepe de chine piped with a very narrow edge of pale green. The dress is embroidered about the bottom with fine splashes of silver lame and is accompanied by a sleeveless jacket, from between the shoulders of which swings a charming little cape embroidered at the edge with splashes of silver similar to those upon the frock.

Taffeta, which has for several years been struggling for a place among fashionable fabrics has been taken up definitely by this house and appears in a number of interesting models. There are several quilted taffeta coats which have attracted much attention. One especially is in a soft, light bluish-green tone, quilted in widely separated diagonal bands and collar and cuffs with gray fur. This is accompanied by a dress of a new type of georgette crepe in exactly the same tone, having a small almost invisible self pattern in it.

Plaids Are to the Fore.

Plaid taffeta is very attractively used in the new collection. It is used in entire frocks and in combination with other materials. The use of taffeta is confined almost exclusively to garments for day wear. The taffeta evening dress does not seem to me to have as yet achieved a place in French fashions.

Plaids in materials other than taffeta have also an important position in the new Premet collection. Transparent materials such as chiffon and georgette crepe are used to a greater degree than ever before. Transparent coats are made in connection with many of the gowns designed for race and restaurant wear. This type of outer garment is very effective, giving dignity and importance to the dress with which it is worn without adding weight. Skirts of pleated chiffon and georgette crepe with sweat-ers or blouses of crepe de chine are being advocated for sports wear. The skirts are invariably pleated and are very new and attractive in appearance. Pleats, generally speaking, are an important factor in the new fashions replacing the godet as a method for introducing fulness in the front.

In the category of wool fabrics I would like to especially mention the soft, fine "laine gratter" which you will find has been very extensively used. It is a very soft, velvety de laine and has frequently a tiny pattern woven in it. It is lovely in delicate color combinations such as soft pastel blue and gray.

A New Fabric.

I would like also to emphasize a new type of fabric combining artificial silk with wool. The feature that distinguishes this type of material from the silk and wool combinations which we have had in the past is that the artificial silk, instead of being brilliant, is rather dull and frosted in appearance. Frequently the silk is introduced in the form of an overplaid or a check.

Pastel blue is one of the tones most emphasized by this house, but all pastel shades I consider very smart, especially the orchid-rose tone, which will be much seen in clothes for resort wear. Black and white is a combination which I strongly advocate for town.

This little resume covers, it seems to me, some essential points in the new fashions that is to say, it points in broad sweeping outlines the silhouette of the smart woman for the season. It does not, however, go into details and it is really in these details that the secret of true chic lies.

RECIPES FROM "My Old Virginia Cook Book"

Cookies—Peanut

CREAM together two tablespoonsful of butter and one-quarter cupful of sugar. Then add one egg well beaten. Mix and sift one-half cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little salt. Add this to the first mixture. Then add two tablespoonfuls of milk, one pint of peanuts (chopped fine), and one-half teaspoonful of lemon juice. Drop from a teaspoon onto an ungreased tin pan, put one-half peanut on each and bake in a moderate oven for about 15 minutes. (Copyright 1926.)

"Le coup double"—Dress in navy marquis with white vest embroidered with pink. The skirt has box pleats.

Dress "Tribune Libre"—Printed alpaca, in blue and white. The vest and bottom of the sleeves are made of white pique, lined with navy blue ribbon.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

THE white clouds scurry swiftly by like white-winged birds that sail against the blue deeps of the sky before the rising gale. Tall grasses toss like angry seas, forever stirred and waving, while branches of the willow trees dance stately measures through. A windy day! Strange voices creep through each once-quiet place so naught can rest or sink to sleep upon the wide earth's face; but ever moving, passing through upon some fruitless quest, the wind's wild messengers imbue the spirit with unrest. Yet joys upon these swift winds rise, and on their winged course they thrust old doubts and fears aside with glad, triumphant force. The boughs are restless sprites today that dance against the sky; the wind has blown my cares away with brown leaves swirling high.

Hose Thinner.

Feminine whimsy again asserts itself in the sudden return to winter fashion of the thinnest of thin black and gun metal silk hose. Man has a look and a shrug for the nether exposure of the expensively fur-coated young ladies on New York's Fifth Avenue, whose legs shiver in a covering of goose-flesh and a 54-gauge stocking that is lighter than a chiffon veil.

A stunning purse is of leather.

BAY STATE FISHING CO., 30 Fish Pier, Boston, Mass.

A dress for afternoon wear which is the latest in the evolution of the sports dress of a few years ago.

"La vie ardente"—Dress of salmon-colored paillette, bordered with black and trimmed with brilliants.

Seen on Fifth Avenue.

Fuchsia and purple tones are expected to assume popularity this fall and winter.

Two-piece tweed suits are increasingly popular.

A demure model for afternoon wear is a black satin basque gown, trimmed in silk velvet and bright embroidery.

A smart line in a fur coat is effected by an Elizabethan collar which divides at the center of the back.

Pointers on Auction Bridge

By MILTON C. WORK

IT is often sound bidding for a player knowingly to overbid, offering to contract to take more tricks than he has any reason to believe his side could make. In other words, he courts a loss in order to keep the adversaries from making game. This is "flag flying"; and, on the rubber game, to suffer an intentional loss rather than permit the adversaries to win the 350 rubber bonus, is often a paying gambit. To illustrate: Suppose that one partnership could make four Hearts but no more, and that the other could make four Spades but no more, and that the hands have been bid up to four Spades. A bid of five Hearts, although it might cost 100 less honors, would be sounder than permitting the four Spades to be played and the rubber to be obtained by the Spade declarer.

Flag flying is not, however, a practice to be adopted by those who have not the Bridge judgment to determine whether the adversaries will surely go game, and whether the flag-flying price will not be too much to pay for keeping the rubber open. All flag-flying declarations obviously must be made during the latter part of the auction, and to make them with any safety it is essential that the initial bid, which is the information platform upon which sound bidders support their later bidding, be absolutely sound.

It is of vital importance that the original bid be dependable. Many players allow the state of the score, or the question of which game of the rubber is being played, to influence them when deciding whether to bid or pass originally, and many a futile effort has been made to justify an unsound original bid by the fact that the adversaries had a score, that it was rubber game, or some other such pretext. Under no conditions, except when making a pre-emptive bid, should any extraneous conditions affect the initial bidding. If he have a bid he should make it; if not, he should pass; to adopt any other practice would practically guarantee an expert partner from flag-flying because he never could estimate the possible loss with any accuracy. The pointer for today is: The initial bid should not be affected by the state of the score. Do you think the following hands should be bid or passed to a Dealer? (x is any small suit lower than a Ten.)

New Beauty for

By Lucrezia

NEW shampoo has been placed upon the market recently that is a real boon to women who suffer from an oily hair condition.

We all know that the hair should be kept supple and soft. If it is too dry, it is brittle and breaks. If it is too oily, it is heavy and falls out.

The woman who has oily hair means a shampooing each day. This is not only inconvenient, but frequently tends to aggravate the oily condition.

With the new dry shampoo, it is able to keep the hair clean by using it once each week, and no water for rinsing is required.

Of the ill effects from frequent shampooing will result. There are several brands of this shampoo obtainable at most stores. All of them are good. They come in different forms, but the fact they all dry shampoos.

When using the shampoo, the hair should be massaged for a few minutes. Then the hair should be brushed to remove the lint and to dry the oils in their hair.

Most table-spoonful of the shampoo is then added to one-half of tepid (not hot) water, and of this liquid is rubbed into a lather on the hair, in the same manner as that employed with any shampoo liquid. When a good lather has been raised, wipe it off with a clean towel, apply the second portion of the shampoo, lather and remove as before.

Two lathers will cleanse the hair thoroughly. After the second application, remove as much of the shampoo as you can with the towel, dry the hair. You will find it is perfectly clean, fluffy and when it is entirely dry, there is absolutely no rinsing required.

It is a real boon to women who suffer from an oily hair condition.

WHAT THE QUEEN MISSED.

Behold, the foot of Royalty hath trod our shores.
The Queen saith in her heart, "Lo, I have SEEN
...
... she knoweth not whereof she speaketh. For, many
... she missed seeing! And, clappers, and Niagara Falls,
... and the Grand Canyon, and chewing-gum signs are not
... the Great Sights of America!

There is the haughty American Office Boy, who turneth away
... and bank presidents, alike, with a contemptuous sneer. And,
... Prince is more disdainful or more mighty!

And there is the all-American stenographer, who taketh her
... with one eye upon the clock, and fortifieth herself for a ... labor upon a nut sundae and a saltine wafer. And no
... is more nonchalant!

And there is the agile commuter, who sprinteth for his train,
... with a light conscience and a heavy garden rake and 10 pounds of
... and a spool of thread, and his wife's new hat.

But most wonderful of all, there is that magnificent spectacle—
... the American Husband!

And what Queen hath beheld him in all his glory?

When he hasteneth down to the office at break of day, and set-
... the stone to the grindstone that his wife may be clad in imported
... and Paris pearls?

When he grabbeth a doughnut and a glass of milk from the ... counter, and raceth back to his desk?

When he ariseth at cock-crow and prepareth his wife's coffee
... delivereth it at her bedside before departing?

When he taketh the Pekingese for its evening stroll and giveth
... weekly bath upon his day off?

When he creepeth up the stairs at midnight, carrying his shoes
... mouth, that his wife's beauty sleep may not be disturbed.

When he pusheth the baby-carriage in the park, upon Sunday ... moons, and wipeth the dishes on the maid's day out.

When he purchaseth his wife's passage to Paris, and packeth her
... and seeth her safely upon the steamer, that she may divorce
... pleasantly and comfortably.

When he cometh across sweetly with the alimony check!

Verily, verily, the Queen may have partaken of green corn upon
... and set her royal teeth in our chewing gum, and sampled our ... chairs.

But she hath not laid eyes upon America's greatest contribution
... the civilized world! For the best toys may be made in Germany,
... the best hats in France, but the best HUSBANDS are made in ... America!

A Wife's Transformation

By MARY CULBERTSON MILLER

What Helen Crane has done is no more than any other woman can do if she is interested in keeping young and fresh. She is indeed a foolish woman who fades and wrinkles, or becomes fat and flabby.
Pursue the rules this ambitious wife observed.

INSTALLMENT 1.
It wasn't anything so drastic as a family explosion that awakened Helen Crane from her sluggish satisfied life—the security of permanence and the feeling that she and her husband were indivisible. She had grown fat and flabby, but it was something equally as effective.

When the clergyman had pronounced Bob and Helen, man and wife, he said, as far as Helen was concerned, the last word on the subject. She settled right down into the take-everything-for-granted marital jog-trot.

Spiritual marriage was an undreamt of thing. She expected her husband to be faithful, because, after all, she had come of a nice family, and presumably they had married for love.

Nothing of the half-shirt sort about Mrs. Robert Stone Crane, just a negligible quantity—something of a vacuum. Her husband's success in business made an easilife possible, and in the process she had grown fat and flabby. She had allowed every interest in life, except that of literature, to atrophy.

Perhaps it was a prayer from a man's exasperated lips one night to the god that understands women after a stronger dose than usual of his wife's negligence, that brought Mrs. Robert Crane under the knife that cut into her indifference.

Only a Spark Left.
In fact, Bob's roses were beginning to adorn other women's bou-doirs. He sought other company with the air of a man in need of refreshment and rest. His life at home was meaningless, without interest or thrill—dead. They were growing rapidly apart, lines of communication all but broken. Yet, there was still a spark among the cooling embers. It needed but a kind wind to blow upon it.

Crane was that successful looking American type. Dressed well, good brain, something fresh and

It was the morning of the day that Crane was to leave for Texas on a six weeks' trip. He had asked his wife to be at his offices about ten-thirty on a matter of business.
In his private office, he had been going through his mail, dictating to his secretary for an hour or more.

At the moment Bob was slightly slumped in his chair, his lean brown fingers neatly poised, his matching, he was endeavoring to keep up continuity of thought.

was difficult—the allure of his efficient young business woman, who one could see was as efficient in her ways of living and dressing as in the office routine, kept disrupting his trend.

"Gentlemen," he dictated. "In accordance with your request of July two, we are enclosing an itemized—"

Concentration broke into bits. Bob's keen blue eyes fastened on the shapely fingers Greuze might have fashioned, moving swiftly across the notebook.
Miss Secretary wished that her employer would go on. Suddenly he pulled himself together—"statement of your account, covering the balance of $24.99—"

As if hooks were drawing his eyes, they lifted to the young woman's delicate profile. Just a shade of coloring not noticeable on the oval cheek. The nut-brown, glossy hair, just right in soft waves across an extra white forehead, and above a straight line of dark brow that gave character to her face.

"Looks like a find!" he thought.
Dressed so quietly, was Miss Secretary in the manner of the business world, one almost missed the beautiful texture of the simple perfection of the work-a-day-trook. Good taste had served in the expression of individuality and style of her clothes.

It was quite obvious that she was a young woman wholly awakened to the consciousness of natural feminine charm. She had well discovered the magic properties of cosmetics, and the more important parts that health, common sense and good taste, play in a woman's toilet.

It was a visualization diametrically opposite that pried into Bob's thoughts; his wife's flabby, slouched body contour, dulled eyes, sallow, unpolished skin, that told tales of sweets, indigestible foods and inactivity. "I don't care what I look like—I'm secure!" exuded from the indulged being of the wife gone to seed.

Wife and Secretary.
Dictation over. A door opened in response to a summons from Bob's desk. "If Mrs. Crane is waiting, tell her to come in please," he said. The next moment the irregular figure of his wife stepped over the threshold and paused.
Almost reluctantly she would emerge from her absorption.

Their two children died in infancy and their substantial home traveled smoothly enough on its own momentum. So there was little for Helen to do but follow her inclinations, and thus she became a mere figurehead of a wife.

From across his mahogany desk her husband's keen eyes pierced her like rapiers. That look almost riveted her—her half-smile seemed a mockery. He spoke quickly, brittle bright, introduced his new secretary, indicated a chair, all were sandwiched into some final instructions in process, to Miss Secretary who was standing nicely poised at the door giving access to her own small domain.
Miss Secretary smiled, and humor shone from dark eyes—that was all. But the reaction that Helen got from that smile was something quite dynamic. She might have said to her, "I'm bound to attract your husband—what are you going to do about it?"

Reddy Continues the Search

Whatever you start you should see through;
It is the only thing to do.

—Reddy Fox.

REDDY FOX is inclined to see things through when once he starts them. You see, curiously, if nothing more, would keep him at it. Then again, he has pride. Reddy has a lot of pride. To give up easily would hurt that pride.

So when Reddy discovered that Mrs. Grouse was not under the pile of brush where he expected to find her, he didn't give up. No, sir, he didn't give up. He looked up at Mr. Grouse and Chatterer the Red Squirrel, and drew up his lips to show all his long, sharp teeth.

They were not pleasant to look at.
In spite of himself Chatterer shivered. Then Reddy turned and began to run in a big circle around the brush pile, keeping his nose to the ground. He was hunting for the scent of Mrs. Grouse. He hoped to find where she had left that brush pile.

But though he was very painstaking and careful, Reddy found no trace of her. He did some quick thinking. "If she had been there I would have found her scent somewhere," thought he. "It must be that she didn't come to this brush pile at all. It must be that Mr. Grouse left her somewhere and came on here alone. The thing to do is to go back and find out where they parted."

So Reddy turned back and followed his own trail back. But this time he was more careful than he had been when he was following it the other way. Always the scent of Mr. Grouse had been so strong, and Reddy had been so sure that Mrs. Grouse was with him that he hadn't watched for a trail turning off to one side. But now he went with the greatest care, and he kept sniffing off at one side, first one side and then the other side of the trail. You see, he thought in that way he might find where Mrs.
Grouse had gone.

He was almost half way back to where he had found the feathers of Mrs. Grouse when he stopped abruptly. His eyes began to shine.
Very carefully he ran his nose over the leaves on the ground. Then, with a look of triumph on his face, Reddy started off to one side. He had found a new trail, and it was the trail of Mrs. Grouse. He knew now that she really had tried a sharp trick, sending Mr. Grouse what it was all about, and Blacky other two were making. So that

Household Hints

WHEN making tomato blisque or creamed tomato soup mix a little soda with a teaspoonful of corn starch and add this to the milk before pouring it into the tomato mixture. This will prevent curdling.

When removing oil stains from the rug with gasoline begin by rubbing around the outer edge and working in a circular motion toward the center. As soon as the cloth becomes soiled change to a clean one.

her marriage to the Master of lilies. She wore orange blossoms in her hair. Her nine young bridesmaids were attired in white frocks and wore wreaths of jasmine in their hair.

Vagabond crowns and Puritan trimmed with ribbon which occa-large bows. The brims are frequently faced with a contrasting

THE TURNING WORM.

BECAUSE they take their lives in hand

When'er they cross a street, Pedestrians have formed a band Of men who use their feet.

Yea bo, the men who use their feet Have formed for self-protection, That they may safely cross the street

In any old direction.

And woe betide the driver who Would knock 'em for a loop; For he will spend a year or two In Col. Baker's coop.

Their protests having been in vain, The walkers now are banding, That with the chauffeurs they may gain.

A better understanding. They'll fight it out along those lines

With vigor, vim and pep, And guys who don't believe in signs

Will have to watch their step. The worm has made a right-hand turn Against the left-hand turner, And while the light holds out to burn,

He'll nab the signal spurner.

QUITE SO. Uncle Wilbert Robinson is sitting pretty with a three-year contract. Escaping the guillotine this year is in itself quite a managerial feat.

Ralph Greenleaf has regained the pocket billiard championship. Ralph is one of those Greenleafs that age cannot wither nor custom stale.

The man on the sandbox says that Congressmen, if any, who peddled their Army-Navy football tickets might have trouble in getting on the party ticket next election.

That snowstorm was all right, but we hope the weather man saved a little of the beautiful for Christmas.

By the Associated Press.
SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 22.—"Willie" Stevens had nothing at all to do with the murders of Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills and her brother-in-law, the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, he testified today.
He, his brother, Henry, and his sister, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, are on trial for the murder of Mrs. Mills Sept. 14, 1922.
"Did you have anything to do with the murder of Mrs. Mills and Mr. Hall?" he was asked. "Absolutely nothing at all," was the answer.
"Do you know anything about it?" "Nothing at all."
Willie was the second of the defendants to testify.
The first question asked of Willie was as to his age. He answered "forty-four," but it was later brought out he means "fifty-four." Mr. Stevens asks Case, "have you ever suffered from, or now suffer from, epilepsy?" "No, sir," answered the witness, speaking in a firm voice.
"In September, 1924, or prior, did you wear a derby hat?" "No, sir."
"How long have you worn glasses?" "Since I was a boy. I can see without them."
On Sept. 14, 1922, at any time were you in or near North Plainfield?" "No, sir."
"Do you wear a gold watch and chain?" "No, sir."
Each answer was given in the same way, as Case asked the defendant questions intended to offset the testimony of two State witnesses who said they saw Willie Stevens in North Plainfield a few hours before the murder.
These witnesses described the man they saw as wearing a derby hat, as being an epileptic, as wearing a golf watch and chain and as without any eye glasses.
"You are a brother of Henry Stevens and Mrs. Frances Hall?" "I am."
"What did the family at your residence consist of in September, 1922?" "Mr. and Mrs. Hall and myself."
"Did you have church affiliation?" "Yes, Christ Church, New Brunswick."
"An Episcopal church?" "Yes."
"Did you often attend the church of which your brother-in-law was pastor?" "Occasionally. Not very often."
On Good Terms With Dr. Hall.
"Did you know Mrs. Eleanor Mills?" "Just by sight."
"What were your relations with your brother-in-law, Mr. Hall?" "Very cordial."
"Did you have a pistol in 1922?" "I had a hammerless revolver."
"Do you know when you acquired it?" "Fifteen or 20 years before."
"When was it used last?" "I can not tell."
"Does it work?" "Yes."
"When it was last fired were all cartridges or blanks used?" "Blanks."
"Was it loaded with ball cartridges in 1922?" "Yes."
The witness told the make of the cartridges after explaining that blanks were used in Fourth of July celebration, a custom abandoned later years, however. He said he had no way of fixing the last time the weapon was cleaned.
"Where did you last see it?" "In this court house."
Charges Abuse by Investigators.
"Under what circumstances?" "I was brought here and put through a severe grilling by Mr. Nathan, Mr. David and Mr. Lamb. They did everything but strike me."
"Were you a subscriber, telling me after I had my shoes off, preparing for bed that they wanted me to go with them into the court to answer a few questions and we would be gone only a few minutes?" "No, sir."
"Where did you last see it?" "In my possession in my room."
"Do you remember to go get it?" "I am not at all sure."
